This is the army, Mr. Jones, Ms. Jones, and Mrs. Jones

PLEASANTON — Instead of digging fox holes, going on bivouac, and pulling KP, some 150 Army reservists are fulfilling their two-week obligation by going to school at Camp Parks.

The "students," representing 12 western states, are the first of 500 expected this summer at Camp Parks to attend the 6th Army Military Occupational Specialty Training Center.

About 20 per cent of this week's crew are women including three who are pregnant.

"The men have shaped up since the women are here — both physically and in their jobs," said Col. Conway V. Peterson, Director of Instruction for the school.

The school offers training in 11 job areas ranging from cooking, finance, personnel management, and supply to motor transport operator, tactical wire operations specialist and ground surveillance radar crewman.

The Camp Parks school was created to provide a training resource for widely scattered Reserve and National Guard units who might otherwise not have access to courses. "There are rarely enough students in a small town Reserve unit to justify setting up a school there," said Col. Mark Owens Jr., commanding officer of the 6237th USAR School at Camp Parks.

"By consolidating them at one location," he said, "we can economically provide the equipment and instructor personnel needed for that particular course."

A typical day for the students starts out at 7 a.m. with a formation followed by a march to class. Except for coffee breaks and lunch the intensified instruction lasts until 4 p.m.

And then it's time for "P.T." — physical training. Students, instructors and staff all participate for a half hour in "self-paced P.T." which ends with a mile run.

Contrary to old Army traditions, the Reservists are exempt from inspections, parades, and K.P.

When the day is over the students are free to "hit the town" or do whatever they choose.

According to Col. Peterson, "The majority of the students are working on their second MOS (Military Occupational Skill)." As civilians, the students and staff have a variety of occupations ranging from housewives to sawmill operators. Col. Peterson, for example, in his private life is Division Administrator for Materials and Molecular Research of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory. Col. Mark Owens, the commanding officer, is the assistant president and business affairs director for the University of California as a civilian.

Last big jump

Pleasanton garbage rates up a fourth

PLEASANTON — The city council approved a 27 per cent garbage rate increase Monday night, a fact overshadowed by the whole process of devising a formula for future rate increases as well.

Council Member Frank Brandes took bows for working many long hours with other citizen-accountants and Pleasanton Garbage Services' accountant Chuck Gielow to hammer out the formula.

The garbage firm used to operate financially in a grey area and the city had no true handle on its expenses; even the owners didn't have a clear picture, said Brandes. Now a clear formula exists and it should mean that the garbage service will operate profitably and probably won't have to come in for any dramatic increases in the future, said Brandes.

The 27 per cent current increase derived from the formula is below the 36 per cent asked by the company and the 31 per cent recommended by the staff.

The percentage increase amounts to the following changes: for one can, from $3.09 to $3.92; for two cans, from $4.92 to $6.23; and commercial rate, from $3.47 to $4.41.

Council Member Ken Mercer sat in on some of the negotiations and he insisted the following also be added: a special lower rate for senior citizens; a higher rate at the transfer station to people who haul their refuse from places outside Pleasanton; advertisement of the free annual spring yard clipping pickup; and an additional two free days per year.

A couple of significant changes made in the agreement include: the city won't pay the garbage firm's costs involved in preventing the previous garbage company's owner from starting in business again and the city won't allow for amortization and taxes on the 2.5 acres owned by the garbage firm but not used for the transfer station.

Brandes, who earlier was critical of supposedly high salaries paid to the owners in addition to their profit-equity in the business, said he now is satisfied with new agreement on profit making. He noted the firm's rate of return will be 10 per cent, not the previous 12 per cent.

He also announced he had expressed suspicion earlier in the press about whether everything was on the up and up after he had gone through the firm's books and he apologized for those comments Monday night. It became clear to him after more research that there was nothing ethically wrong with the firm's procedure.

He's young, eager and not about to quit

LIVERMORE — Matt Acamo blasted three home runs in the Midget League last season. He's one of the youngest players in the Livermore National minor leagues this summer.

Not particularly noteworthy, except that Matt plays with just one hand, a birth defect leaving him with only a fully developed thumb on the other.

He takes his turn at bat and plays in the field just like everyone else. Except for a single handicap, he is just like everyone else.

"My doctor said if you treat him like there's something wrong, eventually there WILL be something wrong," says Matt's mother, Pat Acamo.

Does Matt think he's something special for competing in organized sports? Not really.

"I like sports," he replies with a grin.

Valley air service

Livermore Airport directors will tackle the problem of possible termination of local air service by California Air Commuter Co., when it meets today at 7 p.m. in the Public Works Conference Room.

Cal Air notified the public utilities commission it intends to discontinue several stops on its route June 21. City officials last week lodged a protest with the PUC.

Santos Rd. issue delayed

Public debate over abandoning Santos Ranch Road will have to wait for two weeks, county supervisors decided. The year-old issue was continued yesterday to June 28.

The county public works department is asking supervisors to give up legal liability and maintenance on the twisting road once dubbed a developer's "goat trail" up the eastern slope of the Pleasanton Ridge. The department last year installed a locked gate limiting access to local property owners.

Trustees due here

In a move to reach more of the district's public, South County Community College District trustees will hold their next meeting at the Chabot College Livermore campus.

The board will meet Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.

Wrong way 580 motorist drags cops

LIVERMORE — A wrong-way driver on Interstate 580 early yesterday led police on a wild chase before the suspect vehicle, dragging a patrol car for one-half mile, finally came to rest near the Altamont Pass.

Livermore Police Sgt. Jerome Weakland crossed the Vasco Road overpass in time to see a pick-up truck going eastbound in the west-bound lanes. He joined a highway patrol unit in pursuit of the vehicle at speeds up to 70 mph.

Weakland pulled ahead of the vehicle and used his patrol car to block two lanes of traffic, but the truck raced straight at him, forcing the officer to jump back out of the way.

He again caught up with the truck and pulled directly in front of it. Weakland slowed and swerved his car in front of the truck as the highway patrol car kept pace in the rear.

Weakland reported hearing the sound of gears shifting, and looked back to see the truck ram him from behind.

William Shepard Emes, Jr., 25, of El Cerrito was booked on three counts of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer. He reportedly told officers he was en route to Los Banos to get his truck repaired, and didn't pull over because he "didn't do anything wrong."

Pleasanton flexes muscle on contract

PLEASANTON — The city council will try to end the county fair's free ride in the city's sewer treatment plant with a positive suggestion backed by threat of a law suit.

The positive suggestion, coming from Vice-mayor Ken Mercer, is a surcharge on anyone who uses the fairgrounds for an activity. The surcharge would in effect be a pro-rata sewer service charge.

The words "law suit" came up when the council discussed what leverage, if any, it has to get out of a 1958 contract which promises the fair free sewer service "for the life of the sewer system."

Past city councils have not held much hope about getting out of the contract, but City Attorney Ken Scheidig said Monday night that legal action may be possible. He didn't get specific, though. The three senior members of the council — Bob Philcox, William Herlihy and Joyce LeClaire — were skeptical that a new round of talks with fair directors would change things from previous attempts.

However, Mercer and Frank Brandes had not been through the previous efforts and they thought some things may have changed. For one thing, previous city councils didn't deal directly with the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, said Mercer. The county owns the fairgrounds land and may be the real party with which to negotiate, said Mercer.

The city's fairgrounds liaison committee — LeClaire and Philcox — will have the first chance at negotiations by talking to Bill Jamieson, a Pleasanton resident appointed to the fair board not long ago by Supervisor Valerie Raymond.

Former Mayor Robert Pearson also urged the council to plan ahead for its next sewer contract with the fairgrounds and make sure the fair puts up enough money to cover both the cost of its own new connections in the expanded VCS plant and also its fair share of the LAVWMA pipeline capacity.

The council's action was prompted by a request from the CARD Committee to try to recover an estimated $200,000 or more in "delinquent" sewer charges that the fair would have paid since 1958 if it had been charged a fee.

Suspect held for alleged kidnaping

HAYWARD — James Franklin Sams, an AWOL sergeant accused of holding a Hayward woman hostage in Livermore for two hours Saturday night, was arraigned in Hayward municipal court yesterday and remains in custody in lieu of $20,000 bail.

Sams will return to court Thursday at 2 p.m. to enter a plea in the case. He is charged with kidnaping.

The suspect allegedly kidnapped Julie Ellen March from her Hayward apartment and drove to Holmes and Alden streets in Livermore, where he held the woman hostage at gunpoint for two hours. Police Officer Jack Stewart negotiated with the suspect throughout the ordeal, and finally convinced him to seek psychiatric treatment.

Sams remains in Santa Rita Jail pending the court hearing.

Union hits county plan on staffing

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County union leaders yesterday blasted the administration's "Alice in Wonderland approach" to staffing, claiming the bureaucracy cuts staff that serves the people while bloating executive levels.

The two page attack came as county supervisors considered a hotly contested $4.5 million of the Social Services Agency's budget.

The union "is appalled that the proposed budget for the agency continues to reduce services to the county citizens, reduce the number of agency staff that services these citizens, but at the same time creates more highly paid administration positions that will further swell an already bloated bureaucracy," Service Employees' International Union spokesman Owen Marron told the board.

Some 107 staff positions will be cut while a hand full of executive slots with salaries from $20,000 to $27,000 will be added, the union claims.

The peppery attack continued into the afternoon as shop stewards and union representatives blasted the board.

Earlier, a dozen pickets from the "Fight Don't Starve Committee" picketed the county administration building in shades of last year's summer's seven-week county employee strike.

These pickets, however, said they represent a "coalition" of community groups, not the union.

Their rhetoric reminiscent of Berkeley in the late 1960s, they said they want increased benefits for the poor, and an end to jail construction and "police repression."

There is "something drastically wrong" with the county's priorities, Marron continued, when services are cut back while the county "has an unemployment rate 50 per cent greater than the nation, and 20 per cent higher than the (state) average."

The Social Services Agency's staff has been cut 23 per cent since 1971, he said, while management has been slashed "only 5 per cent."

Board members and County Administrator Loren Enoch, the brunt of the union's attack, sat placidly through Marron's attack, offering no response.

At stake are some $4.5 million in county "general assistance" (welfare) increases not included in the recommended overall $440.5 million county budget.

Each million dollars in county spending funded from the property tax costs taxpayers about $4 a year.

Supervisors are weighing general assistance increases against more stringent standards.

The union charges projected cutbacks in social services' caseloads stem from a board policy "making it more difficult for needy people to receive benefits to which they are entitled."

"The county's priorities should be to provide the desperately needed human services that are required to alleviate the problems facing the poor, the unemployed, and the under-employed, as well as maintaining and enhancing those government services necessary to all citizens — homeowners, renters, poor, middle class — taxpayers and voters all."

Assemblyman Floyd Mori has announced a schedule of hearings on operations of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board this summer.

The hearings are scheduled to coincide with the peaks of the harvest season so that a maximum number of farm workers can attend.

The first of the hearings was held June 4 in Indio and approximately 20 growers and 15 farm workers testified, said Mori.

The growers complained about alleged bias and inexperience by the labor relations board agents and supposed inconsistency in administering the farm labor act.

Generally the workers had filed unfair labor practice complaints against growers and felt that it took so long for agents to address the complaints that they lost work anywhere from four days to two months, reported Mori.

Main target of both camps was Harry Delizonna, who supervises the board's agents. Workers and growers alleged that Delizonna is a poor administrator in dealing with the agents; some of the agents have complained about the same thing.

Mori told The Times Friday that he, as chairperson of the Joint Committee to Oversee the ALRB, has not had a chance to dig into the accusations against Delizonna.

Dates and locations for future committee hearings are Fresno, July 13 and Oct. 7; Salinas, July 19 and Oct. 13; Stockton, July 26 and Oct. 18; Oxnard or Ventura, July 28 and Oct. 27; and El Centro, Oct. 4.

Public comment invited on proposed CCC budget

Leshar News Bureau MARTINEZ — People will be able to take part in a "vent your wrath" session on the yet-to-be-released 1977-78 Contra Costa County budget July 12.

The Board of Supervisors' finance committee Monday decided the public should be able to comment on the budget before any in-depth hearings are held on it.

Supervisors are scheduled to be presented the budget June 28.

And the finance committee figured that people should be given time between 2 and 5 p.m. on July 12 to comment as they see fit on the amount of money the county intends to spend in the next fiscal year.

Supervisor Robert Schroder, Walnut Creek, said the supervisors should be prepared to take the public's wrath.

"People aren't interested in explanations of mandates. We are the individuals they're after. We have to take the brunt of it."

Supervisor James Kenny of Richmond, the other finance committee member said at the July 12 hearing, the board members should just listen to comments and suggestions from people.

Key figure in farm politics moves on LIVERMORE — A key figure in the Valley's agricultural "politics" is leaving for a Sacramento post.

Bob Roan, resource conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, has been one of the Valley agricultural leaders who worked to establish the new Agricultural Advisory Board to the Alameda County Board of Supervisors.

"We got the people to recognize agriculture is an important industry in the county," Roan said yesterday at a farewell luncheon — appropriately — the Livermore Rancher restaurant.

He helped to unite cattlemen, sheepmen, farmers, Farm Bureau officials and Resource Conservation District directors — people who traditionally had little to do with politics — into an articulate group who have been challenging the county's "slighting," as they see it, of agricultural interests.

Roan has also wrangled with state and federal agencies to gain assistance for local farmers and ranchers.

He has worked in the local Soil Conservation Service office on Catalina Court, Livermore, for the past two years. He is leaving because he was promoted to the position of general conservationist with the state Water Quality Control Board to help with a study of nonpoint-source pollution in the Central Valley.

Roan holds a bachelor of science degree in natural resources from California State University, Humboldt.

"He just come and he has to go," sighed rancher Harry Lefever, president of the Alameda County Resource Conservation District and emcee of Roan's farewell fete.

"Bob's just wonderful all over. I hope the SCS can replace him with somebody as good."

Roan and his wife, Jan, will move with their two small daughters to Sacramento next week. A replacement is expected to be on the job by the end of the month.

SRV supervisor takes new look at issues

MARTINEZ — After being in office six months, Supervisor Eric Hasseltine said he has refined old viewpoints and developed new ones concerning community issues in Contra Costa County.

His fifth district territory includes San Ramon Valley.

Since he has been serving as Contra Costa's representative to the Delta Advisory Planning Council, Hasseltine said he has come to realize it is a must for East Bay Municipal Utilities District (EBMUD) to receive extra water from the Delta.

"If we don't get it, we'll run out of water before too long."

Concerning development, especially in Alamo, Danville and San Ramon, Hasseltine said he had been trying for quite a while to bring a more sensible treatment to that aspect of the community.

"There are exceptions but the board of supervisors feel they have had some luck in keeping houses off of ridge lines. But since some of the planning had already been approved before we took office six months ago, we haven't been able to solve all of the problems. We'll never be able to solve all of them."

He said some developments had met with approval since they were sensitive to space around them. Others failed because they did not meet criteria set for development.

"It must be remembered that San Ramon Valley is a beautiful place to live and people want to come here. We have to recognize there are competing forces involving economics, aesthetics, adequate services and schools. We have to be fair, rational and try to balance good and bad interests."

Hasseltine said he considered defeat of the recent school bond issue in San Ramon Valley Unified School District "a real shame."

"That was very disappointing. Since we are trying to make progress in that area on a program of balanced growth, one thing we have to provide are school facilities."

He declared one of the prices of living in San Ramon Valley was to see that schools were provided.

"If the Valley loses its educational system, it will lose some of its attractiveness to residents."

Hasseltine contended if Walnut Creek School District tried to absorb San Ramon Valley Unified School District while trying to unify their own, it would remove the Valley's tax base.

"That maneuver would make it more costly to operate what we have while creating an overall loss of revenue to San Ramon Valley School District."

Supervisor Hasseltine said he thought taxpayers could expect a substantial cut in the tax rate next year through better utilization of county resources.

"Property tax revenues should ever rise more rapidly than the cost of living," he claimed.

Hasseltine maintained that sooner or later Alamo, Danville and the Contra Costa County portion of San Ramon would take another crack at becoming incorporated.

"If not all, then some of them," he said. "I have always believed in local community input. They know their needs better than anyone else. Although needs change and the reasons and purposes for incorporating keep changing, it is basically a good idea."

"At some point in time, people in those areas will have to assume the responsibility of how they are going to operate. Incorporation would provide them with the necessary focus."

The proposed abandonment of the Southern Pacific railroad track was not considered a "burning issue" by Supervisor Hasseltine.

opposed to abandoning the track from Crow Canyon Road south. We need to have that area serviced by a railroad if we plan to ever get any industrial base there. And we need to broaden our tax base very badly. If we take out the rail head, we're cutting off that base at the ankle."

Dublin resident tagged to appear in radio film

SAN FRANCISCO — Julie McNeill, Dublin resident, is getting a chance to star in a movie thanks to a contest conducted by KNBR Radio 68.

McNeill was a winner in the recent "KNBR Might Make Me A Star" competition. Listeners put special bumper stickers on their automobiles which were then spotted by KNBR talent scouts. If a listener heard his or her license plate called out on KNBR, they had 30 minutes to contact the station and sign up for a starring role.

McNeill and her guest will have roles in the movie written, produced and directed by the radio station.

In all, one hundred winners and their guests will join KNBR staff for the filming of the 30-minute "Whodunit" entitled, "The Night of the Tuffet." Cameras will roll July 9 and 10 in the hills behind Saratoga.

Location for the shooting is the Paul Masson Mountain Winery, a twelfth century Romanesque stone mansion — the perfect setting for a mystery-comedy.

Dublin chamber has new hours

DUBLIN — New office hours for the Dublin Chamber of Commerce will be effective June 16.

According to Nancy Feeley, chamber office manager, Monday through Thursday hours will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The office will be open during lunch from noon to 1 p.m.

The office will be closed Fridays.

These new hours will be effective until Sept. 1.

After that date, hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday; 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday. (Also open lunch hours.)

Second VCSD hopeful

DUBLIN — San Ramon resident, Paul Schissler, is the second person who has picked up an official nominating petition for one of two director seats soon to be vacated on the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) board.

June 9 was the first date nominating petitions could be picked up. After obtaining 10 registered voter signatures, prospective nominees have to file their petitions at the Registrar of Voters in their respective counties not later than 5 p.m., July 1, 1977.

A mailed ballot election Sept. 6 will determine who will fill the two director posts.

Lila Euler has also picked up an official nominating petition. She is currently serving on the VCSD board. Her term will expire this year.

Jeff Lormand plans on adding a Cheshire cat next to his colorful mushrooms.

Fantasy brightens up suburbia

Anyone getting up at midnight for a drink of water at Bob and Ruth Lormand's house in Livermore has to brace himself for what lies ahead — an eventful trip down a long, long hall. Yellow eyes glint wickedly in dark corners, a hawk looks ready to swoop down on its innocent prey and a gnarled tree appears suspiciously like a man-eater.

Strangely enough, daylight doesn't make the timid any less fearful! But thanks to Jeff Lormand, a senior at Livermore High School, suburbia is just a little bit brighter. Six weeks ago Jeff came up with an idea that has turned into a family project — painting a mural.

Many gallons of paint later, the Lormands have transformed their like-so-many-others hallway into a veritable paradise of rainbows, life-like mountains so realistic that you expect Julie Andrews to suddenly appear and burst into song, and even a castle.

A fantasy lover, Jeff has taken bits from his favorite stories and created some fun. Stars glitter on the 28 foot hallway's ceiling, and a sun's curling rays bob up from behind a rainbow.

Jeff, who has never painted or drawn before, appreciates his parents' concern about possible low re-sale value, should the family decide to move elsewhere. "We don't care," he laughs, "because it's fun working on it together and it's special."

FRONT ROW

I'm glad I went to the Valley Performing Arts Company's production of "Carnival." It was a light hearted evening spent with my 15-year-old son, who enjoyed the play.

And although it seems that some kind of magic has taken place when we are transported to some fictitious place and time by those who do all the things that actors and directors do, it is the transference of the audience from the awareness that they are watching a play that is critical in the success of the whole thing.

Having the clowns, jugglers and circus freaks come from the back of the theatre, handing out balloons, popcorn and candy, is a device to overcome audience resistance. But these devices are not really necessary if a spell has been cast. And that is the magic. And perhaps "Carnival" has a little of that magic. Anyway, it was fun.

Paul Del Vecchio, as Marco the Magnificent, was really funny, with his exaggerated gestures of conceit.

Wayne Smith, playing the part of Paul, the embittered puppeteer, had the most demanding, and the most intriguing, role. He did well, although he was too handsome for the part. I felt he should have had a hair out of place once in awhile. His voice is wonderful and sensitive, well worth hearing, and his acting was good.

I think that Marie Cochran, as Lili, is so good at what she is doing, that one takes her for granted, rather than recognizing her ability to integrate the play by playing her part well. She will have to reach out, or inward, in the future, to come up with something surprising and different to capture the audience's attention and make them aware that she has been doing a good job all along.

The Incomparable Rosalie, played by Ann Wilkins, was greatly enjoyed by the audience. She has a flair for comedy.

The puppets performed very well, and got a one-year-old in the audience to giggling. There were a few little rough edges, but it was an entertaining evening. Tickets for the remaining performances at Dublin High School Little Theatre on June 17 and 18, may be reserved by calling 846-1455 or 829-0685.

June 26 concert

Ray Charles comes to Oakland

The incomparable Ray Charles brings his musical genius to the stage at Oakland's Paramount Theatre for a one-night concert Sunday, June 26 at 8 p.m.

On stage to help create the special magic that has made Ray Charles so popular will be the Raeletts and the Ray Charles Orchestra.

A legend for his time, Charles' triumphs as an artist are the reverse coin to the personal tragedies which have plagued him. Ray Charles Robinson was not born blind — only poor, on Sept. 23, 1930, the older son of Aretha and Bailey Robinson in Albany, Georgia.

When Ray was four, his younger brother George accidentally drowned in a washtub in the front yard before a panic-stricken Ray could summon his mother.

But by that time Ray had befriended Wiley Pittman; as the old man played a beat-up piano on the front porch, Ray would listen attentively, and then, with Wiley's encouragement, bang away on it enthusiastically.

By the time Ray was six, the family had moved to Florida. Physical darkness began its slow, irreparable descent. Doctors now assume that a variety of glaucoma had affected Ray; poverty and race combined to render medical assistance an impossibility.

When asked later about his blindness, Ray Charles answered, "People should never be bitter about anything. They should go out into the world and learn to keep fighting for themselves."

The source of this philosophy was his mother's statement to a seven-year-old who could no longer see — "You're blind, not stupid. You lost your sight, not your mind."

Soon afterward Ray lost his father to death, and his mother only five years later. Between age seven and 15, Ray attended St. Augustine's School for the Deaf and Blind and learned to read and write Braille, type and play classical piano.

At 15 he joined a dance band and never looked back, gradually developing his own style and an underground following among the blacks. His 1954 hit song "I Got a Woman" finally introduced Ray to white audiences.

Today, when not traveling with the Ray Charles Revue, Ray spends much of his time with his own music publishing companies.

Tickets for the June 26 performance are priced at $9.50, $8.50 and $7.50 and are available at the Paramount Ticket Box Office (465-6400); Macy's Emporium-Capwell's (for all major credit cards dial U-CHARGE, 824-2743) and other major ticket outlets.

Ray Charles will make a one-night appearance June 26.

Auditions

High school graduates are invited to audition for the Livermore Musical Theatre production of "South Pacific," scheduled to begin August 18.

Auditions will be held Wednesday, June 29 at the Carnegie Building in Livermore at 7 p.m. Those auditioning should be prepared to sing an appropriate song.

Alma Rasmussen, who's 75 years young, has been around the world — mostly by freighter. What's the secret for a traveler who's visited 99 countries? "You've got to be patient," she says.

After 99 countries she still loves travel

Alma Rasmussen has a theme song: "Around the World in 80 Days." Well, she hasn't done it quite that fast — but she's been around the world many times.

And, says the 75-year-old beauty, she's only one country away from obtain-water sometimes." And she recalls the time her ship once came into New York Harbor covered with ice in the middle of a hurricane. Or there was the time that she was the only passenger on deck in Borneo, stuck "for days and days in the steaming heat" while docks on the Thames.

But, she says, she's not out on the road all the time anymore — the "costs have gone up so much" and, she concedes, "at my age, it's a little more difficult."

So she keeps busy in the clubs like the V.I.P.'s, which she helped found, ing membership in the exclusive Century Club — which admits travelers who have visited at least 100 countries.

Mrs. Rasmussen, incredibly enough, says she's "done most of my traveling by freighter." That's enough to make even the hardest wanderer take a long, deep breath.

Since 1949, when she took her first trip to Alaska, Mrs. Rasmussen's journeys to 99 countries have put her on every continent and in some of the more unusual places in the world, including Greenland and Iceland. She's covered Central and South America, Africa, Mexico, Canada, the South Seas and the Middle East and on and on and on.

"I'm one who likes to get out and explore," she laughs, her bright eyes lighting up. "The freighters are a great way to go — they gave me lots of time to see everything, so many countries."

"I've never been seasick," she says with a bit of justified pride, "but we've been in some pretty rough the ship was loading and unloading. "You have to be patient to travel by freighters," she adds, with mock seriousness.

Patience — and adventurous — are the words that describe this lady, who was once lost in Guatemala City after curfew without knowing the name of her hotel — or how to speak Spanish.

"That was the worst time I ever had with languages in all my travels," she says. "Most of the time I got along very well."

Mrs. Rasmussen, a native of Livermore and member of a local newspaper family (her father owned the Tri-Valley Herald in Livermore), says that her most memorable trips have also been her most unusual ones. A four-month freighter to Africa took her through the great plains to see the wild animals up close.

She's also seen the touching poverty of India and Pakistan where she remembers beggars so vividly. And there was the beauty of London seen while sailing up to the and the Pleasanton Women's Club, and she designs her own needlepoint.

But every once in a while the travel bug comes back, she admits.

"I'm going to Canada this summer," she says, and later adds "I'd really love to see Cuba, maybe when the tours are better planned."

So, who knows? It looks like Alma Rasmussen may just keep going and going — just like the young adventurer she really is.

S.F.'s best eateries for the hip

Good morning, and welcome to the sequel "Hangouts for the Hip and Semi-Hip." As you may recall, we have done the Berkeley blue jean hangout scene and today it's San Francisco's turn.

There are millions of great hangouts in San Francisco, but I'll try to hip you to my favorites. Little Joe's lunch counter still rates for Italian food. It's on Columbus Avenue just above Broadway. The veal Parmesan is outta sight for around $4.50, and of course it's best with the red wine that nearly everyone drinks there. They have pasta al pesto for about $2.50, which is Italian green spaghetti, a mixture of herbs that renders the pasta into a whole new entity.

They have a wide variety on the menu, all Italian, all fried in oil, and the real attraction is the show put on by the two chefs, with their flamboyant, flaming cooking and their jokes with each other and the customers. Expect to wait standing in line at least 20 minutes most evenings, even up to one hour. But it's worth it.

A great place for pizza is The Sausage Factory, Castro Street near 18th Avenue. Best pizza in the Bay Area, thick crust, no grease, done by perfection-ists. Sausage side orders also a specialty. You'll have to wait 20 or 30 minutes, but there is a funky beer and wine bar in back where you can do it. Good mixture of gay couples, straight couples and families with kids.

Around the corner and down 18th toward the Bay is the Neon Chicken. It's in a converted house, has butcherboard tables and serves five or six dishes well prepared in the $4.50 to $7 range. Nicely done vegetables and salads, too. Cream soups. Waiters in checked shirts. You know, the 1970's version of European mod.

A block further along 18th Ave. is Sweet Licks, featuring natural ice cream and soft frozen yogurt. The latter is the big attraction. It comes in six different flavors (when they're not out) and prices start at around 40 cents for small size, up to 80 or 90 cents for the biggie. A few more blocks down 18th Ave. at Dolores, near Mission High School, is the Real Good Karma Cafe. It used to be the Good Karma Cafe, but it changed ownership. I liked the old setup, which I patronized for eight years, better.

But even this incarnation of it isn't bad. The food is still wholesome and healthy and the menu is totally vegetarian. You can get a dinner for $3.25, but I usually stick with red beans and brown rice with melted cheese on top for around $1.40 or so. And that's a huge plateful of the stuff. Atmosphere is hippie commune funky, but clean, and tends to be underheated on cold days.

For a middle class version of the Real Good Karma Cafe, you can try Shandygaff on Polk Street a few blocks south of Broadway. Atmosphere is hanging plants and late '60's supergraphics look. Vegetarian menu with prices a couple dollars higher than the Real Good Karma. They also serve wine, which violates the Health Food Ten Commandments, but keeps a lot of folks happy. A Shandygaff is a glass of orange juice with Chablis in it.

Another hangout, less hip, but enjoyable if you have a Scotch or other British Isles background, is Edinburgh Castle on Geary Street, a couple blocks east of Van Ness Avenue. It has been around a long time and resembles a good English pub, they tell me. They have Guinness on draft, which is important, and a live bagpiper on weekend nights. Scotch bagpipe music on the juke box. And you can go around the corner to Polk Street at dinner hours and get fish and chips to go from the Old Chelsea. For under $2.

And finally, two spots in North Beach. For a little authentic beat poet history, try the Cafe Trieste on Upper Grant, just above Columbus. Ginsberg, Ferlinghetti, all the greats used to drink coffee or hot almond steamed milk there. And further up Grant is the old Coffee Gallery, but it's seen better days in terms of being hip. Now it's turning into more of a low cultural density neighborhood bar.

Coffee Gallery is across from the Savoy Tivoli, which had good paella, last time I checked, which was a couple of years ago. The bar is gay, but the restaurant is integrated.

And finally, there is Tosca, on Columbus, just below Broadway, across from City Lights bookstore, the touchstone for us West Coast poets. At Tosca you get opera on the juke box and either booze or coffee.

My favorite drink there is a white nun — a warm milk, Kahlua and brandy. All this for a mere Bay Bridge toll and more.

Watercolors

The work of artist Don Larsen, a Livermore resident and principal of Jackson Elementary School, is featured this month at the Livermore Art Association Gallery, located on Third Street between J and K Streets. The show, open Wednesday through Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., includes Larsen's watercolors. Shown above is his work, "Forest Edge."

Photography is a way of life for Kenneth Way.

Way has been making his living with all kinds of photography — scientific to wedding — for many years.

An industrial photographer at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Way was recently honored by the Professional Photographers of California.

Two prints, shown at right, were chosen for hanging at the 24th Western States Convention, which included works from California, Nevada, Washington, Oregon and Hawaii, held at the Disneyland Hotel.

Way, who was raised in Livermore and has worked at the Lab for 19 years, also does another kind of photography — wedding and portrait.

But with some of the work done at the Lab and some of it done at home, the father of two and Livermore resident is keeping pretty busy. He's submitted work for national competitions and has previously exhibited statewide. And someday, he says, he'd like to get his degree from the Professional Photographers of America as a master photographer.

Livermore photographer Kenneth Way poses with two of his works recently selected for exhibition by the Professional Photographers of California.

PAL awards student prizes

The Pleasanton Art League recently awarded four scholarships, ranging from $50 to $250, to area high school seniors.

Kenneth Hayes, 18, an Amador High School student, was the recipient of a $250 scholarship. He plans to attend Diablo Valley College and major in architecture.

Greg Arnett, 17, also an Amador High Senior, won $150 from the League. Arnett wants to attend Cabrillo College in Aptos and be an art major. Originally from Chicago, Arnett said he may go into teaching in the future.

Winner of $100 was Terry Schloop, an 18-year-old Foothill High student who plans on attending Chabot College and possibly continue on to California College of the Arts and Crafts to major in graphic design.

Debbie Foster, 18, a Foothill High student plans to attend Chabot College for two years, then transfer to an art school to major in fashion or commercial art.

Applicants for the scholarships were judged by their school and community records, future plans, showing of at least four pieces of art, and by an interview with the scholarship committee.

"I lost 53 pounds with NaturSlim ...and I feel like a new person!"

-Susan Simpson

"Since beginning the NaturSlim program I've gone from a size 19 to a size 13/14 and lost 53 pounds. My goal is to lose 60 pounds and drop to a size 12" says 16 year old Susan Simpson, student at Narbonne High School and a resident of Lomita, California.

"I weighed 197 pounds and had tried many other diets, such as counting calories, Ayds, the orange a day diet, etc., but none produced the results that NaturSlim has.

"It is really nice to feel a part of living again . . . to be able to crawl out of my shell and stand on my own two feet. I used to wear a jacket everywhere I went because of my weight, but now I am proud and happy not to have to hide like that anymore. For the first time in eight years I'm looking forward to participating in summer activities, such as swimming and going to the beach with my friends.

"I followed the recommended program, mixing NaturSlim with nonfat chocolate milk or unsweetened orange juice for breakfast and lunch, and I ate regular portions of meat, potatoes, vegetable and usually a salad for dinner. NaturSlim really tastes good and fills me up so I don't experience hunger pangs during the day. When I feel the urge for a snack I eat an apple or fresh carrots.

"One of the things that really helped was the support, encouragement and compliments from my friends and family. My social life is improving, too. I'm really looking forward to the Senior Prom. And since I've slimmed down, I've gotten a whole new wardrobe!"

Susan's mother comments that "A lot of people don't even recognize Susan since her weight loss. Her father and I are really proud of Susan and her strong will and determination to stick with the program. Susan is like a new person . . . she is more out-going and happy to be involved in activities with others. We are able to share much more together because she is not so shy and withdrawn. It is Susan's desire to reach out to those other teenage girls and adults who are overweight like she used to be . . . and to convey to them the message that the NaturSlim program really works!"

Yule sprays win

LIVERMORE — Excitement and disappointment were the ranges of emotions during city council's regular meeting Monday.

The excitement came with unanimous approval of fir sprays with red bows and green and red banners for winter holiday decorations for Livermore.

The disappointment was displayed during the open forum by former Mayor Don Miller who berated council for inconsistency in enforcing the sign ordinance and by Paul Tull who argued with council tactics last week when he was ejected from the chambers.

The city beautification committee had asked for $2,033.76 for 300 fir sprays and $2,607.52 for 50 banners with illustrations of snowflakes and various tree ornaments.

Miller complained about real estate brokers' signs placed in the street and "destroying the image of residential neighborhoods."

He was also upset with the Ozzie Davis "illegal" sign which the council keeps mentioning but does not react officially with action.

"This weekend they paraded a 250 square foot billboard in the rodeo parade," he said, "and it is now on their lot, illegal."

"The majority of businessmen in Livermore protested loudly the sign ordinance," said Miller. "When the ordinance was adopted, almost all changed the signs in the amortization time limit."

"Those who obey the rules are at a competitive disadvantage," he added.

Planning Director Howard Nies told council the planning commission is scheduled June 21 to consider an Ozzie Davis application for a conditional use permit for the sign.

City Attorney Gary Reiners told council he is preparing a complete report on the sign ordinance and various legal complexities that should concern the city. It will be placed on an agenda in the near future, he said.

Tull, who was escorted out of the council chambers last week by two police officers at Mayor Helen Tirsell's demand, chided the council for not heeding either the U.S. or California Constitutions or the U.S. Supreme Court's several decisions in favor of free speech.

He was told to leave last week because of being quite outspoken on several separate issues.

Tull quoted from the high court's decision in Roth vs. the United States, that "a profound national commitment to the principle that debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust and wide open, and that it may well include vehement, caustic and sometimes unpleasantly sharp attacks on government and public officials."

Tull's rhetoric has been caustic often during city council meetings and his personality clash with Tirsell came to a head last week.

— by Neil Heilpern

Ann Spies displayed one of 50 banners the beautification committee wants to hang on telephone poles along First and Second streets for Christmas holiday decorations. Half the banners would have green backgrounds with large white snowflakes; half would have red backgrounds with pictures of things like candy canes, bugles and hobby horses. Council agreed to fund the decorations.

Brown's pay hikes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said Tuesday he would veto a bill granting salary boosts of $15,000 to $20,000 a year to state constitutional officers.

"It will never see the light of day," the governor said of the bill by Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento.

Brown said he would veto it even if a provision hiking his own pay from $49,100 to $65,000 a year were deleted.

The Democratic governor said at a sidewalk news conference that he favors some raise for constitutional officers, but he wouldn't specify how much. He said they haven't had a raise for eight years.

Trial run of $400,000 bus system 6 months off

LIVERMORE — The wheels started turning Monday to establish a bus system for this city within six months.

City council approved spending $150,000 for the local matching fund share of a four route system with half hour headways during commute hours and 45 minute headways during mid-day.

Proposed by the city transportation committee, the system would be an 18 month pilot study that could become permanent if the people of Livermore want to keep the system.

"We want to get a feel for it," said transportation committee member Gib Marguth. "After making route shifts (and other adjustments) in the first 12 months, you political leaders can put it on the ballot."

He told council two studies were being made, one by AC Transit and one by a private consulting firm, but all four routes would be "fanning from the downtown area."

Council approved the first $50,000 for the 1977-78 budget, borrowing the money from the park fund reserves. Enough would accrue from the same fund, said City Manager Bill Parness, to supply the other $100,000 on loan to the bus proposal.

Annual cost of a service contract with AC Transit for the system would be approximately $400,000, but 75 per cent would come from state grant funding through Transportation Development Act funds.

Marguth noted in a report to council that it could be possible for a lower cost by using an operator other than AC Transit. "Unfortunately, the use of an operator other than AC Transit could jeopardize local access to the 75 per cent TDA funding."

Metropolitan Transportation Commission would make determinations, he said, if AC Transit is unable to provide adequate service.

In other business, council:

Authorized Berkeley architects Ratcliff, Slama & Cadwalader to complete preliminary drawings of the new city hall, scheduled for a December 1 construction start. The building should be ready for occupancy by November, 1978. Some people at the capital improvements budget study session later that night urged council to postpone plans for the city hall and use the $1.1 million in federal revenue sharing funds for other needs of the city.

"There is no reason to wait," said Councilman Dale Turner. "Each year the costs go up."

Parness said he was preparing a report on possible sales of currently held city properties downtown in an effort to raise extra money for construction of the last phase that includes a new council chamber.

Council now meets in the municipal court.

CARD's vote drive on pipeline doubtful

PLEASANTON — Members of the CARD Committee say they are on schedule to their goal of more than 1,400 signatures to referend the LAVWMA pipeline, but their effort may be in vain.

Indications from City Attorney Ken Scheidig are that the CARD petition to bring the pipeline to a popular vote may be too late.

Only legislative actions of the council may be referended and the city council action May 23 that is the petition's subject may have been an administrative action, Scheidig told the city council Monday night.

However, Scheidig refused to give a hard and fast ruling because he wants to wait until CARD submits the petition. He said he does not want to discourage CARD's right to gather signatures on a petition.

Mayor Robert Philcox is not neutral on the petition, though. After a blast at CARD last week in the press urging voters to refuse to sign the petition, Philcox followed up Monday night by declaring once the petition is turned in to the council, he will phone the signers and ask them to remove their names from the petition.

Philcox feels that CARD is not telling voters the whole story about the LAVWMA pipeline. Any other viable alternative will cost taxpayers twice as much, but CARD doesn't tell people that, said Philcox.

Council Member Frank Brandes had a comment, too. CARD has been using his name as an endorser of the petition and he does not support the petition.

Brandes and Council Member William Herlihy did vote against the pipeline agreement previously because they wanted the electorate to vote on the pipeline as it did last November when the financing method was defeated in Dublin and Livermore. Since their losing vote, the pair has joined the majority in voting for the LAVWMA project.

CARD's position on LAVWMA alternatives is that the water should be recycled in the Valley, rather than shipped out by pipeline. The group believes the Valley should push the federal government for financing of such a project and thinks that if done properly it would cost Valley taxpayers much less than the pipeline.

CARD spokesperson John Fraga would not reveal how many signatures had been collected by yesterday, but said his group is "on schedule". Anyone who wants to help CARD with the effort can call Fran Headley at 846-5050.

City reaffirms role in dude ranch sewer

PLEASANTON — An attempt to cancel the city's contract to supervise the private sewage treatment plant on Bill Apperson's dude ranch in the eastern Sunol hills failed Monday night.

Council Members Joyce LeClaire and Frank Brandes asked the council a couple of weeks ago to cancel the agreement because they felt the city should not take on any more sewer commitments than its own business. They noted that the city is opposed to Carl Nipper's development along the Sunol Ridge partly because it can bring in more regional sewage treatment problems. Underwriting Apperson's plant is inconsistent with the position on Nipper, said LeClaire and Brandes.

Mayor Robert Philcox and Council Member William Herlihy argued that there is a big difference between Apperson and Nipper. Apperson's operation is commercial and if there is a failure, all guests can be evacuated in a few hours. In the Nipper development, people live there and a failure would have more serious consequences.

Also Apperson will hire a full time supervisor for his private treatment plant, but let the city use the person half time at the Sunol Sewage Treatment plant, which is due to be phased out in four or five years.

Vice-mayor Ken Mercer was the swing vote; he inspected the site personally and decided he agreed with Herlihy and Philcox. The city won't be out anything; it only will monitor the plant and report the findings to the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board, said Mercer. His tour of the area indicated the plant Apperson will install shall be modern and should not malfunction.

Brandes said he agreed with most of Mercer's arguments, but felt that "there is no valid reason why the city should be involved — it's not a Pleasanton city problem."

Livermore sales soar while others level off

Retail sales in Livermore soared during the first quarter of 1977, while Pleasanton and possibly Dublin also trailed well behind that pace — setting mark.

Reports from the State Board of Equalization credit Livermore with $24.7 million in taxable sales for the first three months of this year against the same period in 1976. That's a 23 percent jump, well ahead of the 19.2 percent advance recorded throughout the state.

Pleasanton, which had been setting a hot sales' clip throughout 1976, appeared to level off in the first quarter of 1977. The $13.2 million in taxable sales this first quarter were only eleven percent ahead of the 1976 period.

Retail sales in Alameda County's unincorporated area — over half of which are recorded just in Dublin — moved ahead by just over 12 percent in 1977 compared with the 1976 first quarter.

The early trend indicates Livermore will go past the $100 million mark in taxable sales for all of 1977, while Pleasanton and Dublin combined will top $200 million.

Rodeo parade boosters report top entries

LIVERMORE — For a parade that almost wasn't, the rodeo parade this year boasted 113 entries with a long list of trophy and ribbon winners.

Parade organizer Harold Gabriel, who picked up the reins when the rodeo association decided not to fund the annual event on Livermore's streets, said he may have even kept within his goal of spending a maximum of $500 for the parade.

Winner of the special city council award was the Carol Jean Dance Studio. Howard and Mello Plumbing took the judges' sweepstakes award for best entry in parade and first place in the novelty class.

Other novelty winners, by place, were Voice of the Valley Tophatters, Sarah Hallam, Reefer Rollers Wrestling Club, Elizabeth Blackwell and Chabot Fire Co.

Antique car winners were Livermore Heritage Guild, Dennis Caywood, Walt Packard, Ray Bonetti, Eason Shoes and Ronald Trudell.

A special youth class award went to Karen Clark, whose goat just didn't want to go the way of the parade until coaxed with some goodies to eat.

In a close competition, Livermore High School marching band took honors in that class. Granada High School was second.

Best float was Roller King of Livermore with its huge skate, followed by El Vaquero Mexican Restaurant with its pretty paper flowers and youngsters with a pinata, Jack-in-the-Box, Rachel Jaw CB Club, Sunshine Solar Systems and Stay 'n Play Ceramics.

The Lu Rayettes wowed the crowd with their group marching and took first place in that event. Second place honors went to the 49er Girls.

Horse Sweepstakes honors went to Barbara Turner.

Other classes and winners were:

Local Western Rider Jr. — Cathy Stutler, Kimi Simard, Karen McClymonds, Joanne Pfister, Tami Cawley and Denise Rogers.

Local Novelty Rider Jr. — Christine Thiele, Janet Scott, Bonnie Wiley and Wendy Greenslade.

Color Guard — Alameda County Cowbells. Mounted Group — S Bar S and Cherokee Hitching Post Stables.

Working Western Man Sr. — Don Matulich and Ron Rogers.

Fancy Parade Horse — Barbara Turner and Barbara Spicer.

CCC seeks citizens' fund ideas

MARTINEZ — Contra Costa County residents are invited to speak their mind about the best way to use $9.6 million received in federal revenue sharing funds.

The invitation is extended by County Administrator Arthur G. Will. He is holding a public hearing at 9 a.m. June 20 at the board chambers of the county administration building, Pine and Escobar streets, Martinez.

Will said the hearing will give citizens a chance to make their views known earlier in the budget process. Further hearings will be held later in the summer by the board of supervisors before the 1977-78 fiscal year budget is adopted.

In previous years, county revenue sharing money has been allocated to property tax reduction by funding portions of the county's operating budget and paying for building projects like the county jail.

The county has advocated the use of revenue sharing for current programs rather than new ones, Will explained. This ensures important services continue and keeps property taxes down.

High priority projects would include startup costs for programs that would bring better efficiency, eventually resulting in lower operating costs, Will said.

He noted that one-time expenditures are more acceptable for revenue sharing since it is not known how long the federal government will continue a program.

Anyone unable to appear at the June 20 hearing may send suggestions to County Administrator Arthur G. Will, County Administration Building, Martinez, Calif. 94553.

— by Sue Vogelsanger

Fancy Dressed Western Lady Jr. — Lori Papadopoulos, Cindy Williams, Nancy Anderson and Rhonda Reynolds.

Pony Drawn Vehicle — Dee Gibson, Jack Willson, Mr. Miller.

Local Western Rider Sr. — Carol Silva and Thomas Foster.

Local Novelty Rider Sr. — Joyce Lund, Minnie Stutler, Robin and Duane Downey and Shelby Foss.

Other winners included:

the Alameda County Sheriff Posse, Ronette Freitas (working western lady Jr.), Rickey Camara (working western lady Sr.), Chick Earnshaw (parade horse), Rose Lopez and Jacky Nel (fancy dressed western lady Sr.), Chris Brunelle (Spanish costume) and Beverly Baxter (Indian costume).

Also, Bud Hender and Elly Cruz (Charro), Lisa Anderson (Arabian costume), Christine Drouin and Julene Lowery (silver mounted), Claire Allen (ladies side saddle), and Mr. and Mrs. Garretson (matched pairs).

Also, future horseman (John Summitt, Jeremy Morre and Kris Barney), novelty costume (Michel Papadopoulos, Alexis Allen and Lis Sedillo), and horse drawn vehicle (Ruth Gabriel and Canterpoint Riding School)

OAKLAND — The fireworks lobby nearly sparked county supervisors into rescinding their "state of emergency" that bans the sale of fireworks in the county's unincorporated areas.

Supervisors Valerie Raymond and Joseph Bort held fast, pulling a halting but necessary third vote from north county supervisor John George.

The ban, in effect for a month, was protested by Red Devil Fireworks executive Leo Crawford. He said his firm will tie sales to a bi-lingual education program and an emphasis on "family fun."

Banning "safe and sane" fireworks — loosely described by fire officials as anything that doesn't shoot or move — would only encourage "bootleggers" to sell illegal, "dangerous" Fourth of July celebration material he said.

Four cities in the county allow the sale, he added.

"You can't buy them in Livermore and Pleasanton," Valley representative Valerie Raymond said. "And if you let them be sold in the county, you open up the entire Valley."

Supervisor Fred Cooper abstained from the vote.

Board chairman Charles Santana, hinting he had changed his mind and would be willing to lift the ban, did not vote.

Never a question that Matt will play ball

LIVERMORE — "Don't let anything stop you from what you want to do."

That's what Matt Acamo, a perky dark-eyed 10-year-old, has heard from his father ever since he was a toddler.

As a result, he's "always" played baseball — even though he only has one hand.

Last year, Matt shyly admits, he got three home runs in a single Midget League game. This year he's one of the youngest players on the Foresters, a minor-league team in Livermore National Little League.

Few spectators would notice it, but when a ball comes to Matt in the outfield, he scoops it out of the air with his gloved left hand; then quickly slips off his glove under his right arm and hurls the ball in, lefty.

It only takes a second and Matt doesn't think it makes any difference in his game. His mother, Pat, confesses, "Sometimes when I'm watching I'll feel all torn up inside and think, 'Oh, if only he had one more finger, he could wear a glove on his other hand.' But it doesn't bother him."

For reasons unknown, the Acamos' oldest child (they also have Mark, 6, and Meghan, 3) was born perfectly normal except for four barely-developed fingers on his right hand next to a normal thumb.

"My doctor (at Vespers Hospital, San Leandro) was wonderful," Pat remembers. "He said if you treat him like there's something wrong, eventually there WILL be something wrong."

"You can focus in on the wrong things. Because a child's tooth is crooked, you don't treat them differently."

"Children are all special in their own way."

A St. Michael's School fourth grader, Matt also plays in the citywide soccer league. "I like sports," he reports with a winsome grin.

Like any caring father, Don Acamo analyzes his son's baseball achievements: "He was outstanding last year in Midget League. This is his first year in Little League and he really hasn't hit his stride yet. He's OK; it's just going to take time."

He tosses Matt a few pitches on the front lawn to demonstrate his son's skill. Attracted by the impromptu game, a neighbor, Shannon Borgess, stops by on his bike.

What Shannon has to say makes the Acamos chuckle. "My coach says Matt is REALLY good."

"Especially for a kid with only one hand!"

Night music

Thirty-three Valley High students from Dublin were awarded high-school diplomas Monday night at ceremonies in the Pleasanton Hotel. Dr. Geraldine Donaldson, president of the Amador High School District board, handed out the documents. The Harvest Park School Band provided music for the reception that followed. At left, graduates excitedly gather in the Hotel's courtyard. Below, student speaker Larry Stephenson is congratulated by class advisor Tom Simonds.

Get ready for antelope

In the Baa

Application cards and information sheets for the 14th annual special hunt for buck antelope in Modoc, Lassen, Shasta and Siskiyou counties will be available by mid-month, the Department of Fish and Game has announced.

Applications may be obtained from authorized license agents and from DFG offices around the state.

They must be filed on the application card and must reach the department's license office in Sacramento by 5 p.m. July 15 to be included in the July 19 drawing there.

A total of 325 permits for adult buck antelope will be issued for the hunt, which will open Aug. 27 and run through Sept. 6. Applicants must be at least 16 years old, possess a valid California hunting license and be residents of the state.

Licenses, stamps and tags for 1977-78 California hunting seasons will go on sale the week of June 19 at Fish and Game offices and with most license agents around the state, according to the DFG.

Hunters were reminded that the Fish and Game Commission again has adopted special deer tag regulations for the area designated zone X, which includes all of Modoc County, most of Lassen and portions of Siskiyou and Shasta Counties.

The special rules are designed to discourage deer hunting in the area where the buck-to-deer ratio has remained low and hunter success is again expected to be poor.

Again this year, as was the case during the 1975 and 1976 seasons, deer hunters will have to decide, before buying their tags, whether to hunt only in zone X or only in the remainder of the state.

Persons wishing to hunt only in zone X, the area traditionally known as district 1 1/4, must take or mail their 1977-78 hunting license and the $3 tag fee to a Fish and Game office where the special tag may be purchased. These tags will not be available from license agents.

Offices in northern California where zone X tags will be available are the following: 411 Burgess Drive, Menlo Park 94025; 2201 Garden Road, Monterey 93940; 627 Cypress (Box 1480), Redding 96001; 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento 95814; 1001 Jedsmith Drive, Sacramento 95819; and Building CT California Veterans Home P.O. Box 47, Yountville 94599.

Fees are $1. Hunters wishing to hunt deer elsewhere in the state may purchase their tags from any authorized agent.

Fees are $10 for the resident hunting license, $3 for the resident deer tag and $1 for the bear tag. The junior hunting license (for hunters under 16 years) is $2; the nonresident hunting license is $35 and the nonresident deer tag $25.

The experimental flock of California bighorn sheep at the Lava Beds National Monument has passed another milestone with a second consecutive year of 100 per cent production and no losses.

As of June 2, seven lambs had been born this spring and there were indications more could be arriving any day. The recent arrivals brought the flock's number to 31, the highest count since bighorn were placed in the 1,100-acre enclosure more than five and a half years ago.

"Until last fall's report, most of the news I've passed on to you has been bad," said biologist James A. Blaisdell. "For the past two years, however, we have had 100 per cent reproduction with no loss since October 1975."

Blaisdell said the continuing health of the flock may be due in part to new salting procedures and cooler weather, which apparently have helped stave off a disease that killed five lambs and a ewe the year before last. He rated conditions excellent this year, although he expected much of the grass to brown up early because of lack of winter moisture.

He said the bighorn flock now contains 11 rams, nine ewes and the seven lambs.

Ten California bighorn were transplanted onto the site from British Columbia in 1971 in an effort to re-establish the animals in the high plains country where they last roamed 60 years ago.

The interagency committee includes representatives of the U.S. Forest Service Bureau of Land Management and the California Department of Fish and Game.

John Lietzke, chairman of the Hunter Safety Course held at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club, reports the following students have successfully completed the most recent class:

Elizabeth Rhudy, Leigh Rhudy, Suzanne Rhudy, Steve Robinson, Susan Santucci, Robert Schupp, John Tuttle, and Mike Vader.

John says this is the last hunter safety class this year. He said he wished to publicly thank those who helped him during the past year, especially George and Phyllis Orloff and their son Stephen and daughter Tasha; and to Cliff Rominger and son Gene, a special thanks also.

If you still need a hunter safety course to get a certificate, contact the Chabot Gun Club in Castro Valley, phone 569-0213.

Bartow ready to run at 'Bama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — "You have to be able to walk before you can run, but I feel we should be able to run fairly quickly," Gene Bartow said Tuesday in taking on the job of establishing intercollegiate sports at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Bartow is giving up the basketball coaching job at UCLA to become athletic director and basketball coach at Alabama - Birmingham, whose 13,000 students now have only club and intramural sports programs.

"I believe many people feel I need psychiatric care for leaving UCLA, but others feel I'll be much happier here," he told a news conference.

Bartow's UCLA record was 52-9, with two Pacific 8 titles, during the two seasons since he succeeded John Wooden. But Wooden had won 10 national titles in the previous 12 years and Bartow caught some flak on the West Coast for not winning a national championship.

That, he said, "really didn't have that much to do with my leaving. I just think I will enjoy life so much in this city and enjoy building a program from the ground up."

As he spoke, Alabama

NEW YORK — The National Football League plotted its Super Bowl itinerary for the next three years Tuesday.

After New Orleans hosts the 1978 game, pro football's annual January extravaganza goes to Miami's Orange Bowl in 1979 and then to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. for 1980.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced the selections of Miami and Pasadena, both return visits for the championship game, after NFL owners heard presentations from eight cities. Also hoping to get the game were Seattle, Houston, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Dallas and Pontiac, Mich.

Apparently, New Orleans' chances were hurt because that city has the next game, Jan. 15, 1978.

"Our people wanted to continue re-tating the games," said Rozelle. "To give us as much advance planning as possible, we have awarded the next two games."

When Rozelle announced the selection of Miami, representatives of that city on hand for the presentation, pounded each other joyfully. The Florida contingent included Mayor Steve Clark, Lew Price, director of the Department of Publicity and Tourism, Jesse Weiss, chairman of the Miami Beach Tourist Development Authority, and City Commissioner J.L. Plummer.

Pasadena's bid was presented by Jim Crain, director of general services for the city, Dr. Ellis Jones and Councilman Donald Yokaitis.

The 1979 game — Super Bowl XIII on Jan. 21, 1979 — will mark the fifth time the NFL championship has been decided in the Orange Bowl. Miami also hosted games II, III, V and X.

Super Bowl XIV will be played on Jan. 20, 1980 in the Rose Bowl and that too will be a return visit for the championship game. Last January, Super Bowl XI attracted a game record of more than 100,000 fans for the contest in Pasadena.

That record attendance apparently helped the owners decide on a return trip to the Rose Bowl. Miami's bid included assurances that the Orange Bowl seating capacity would be expanded from its present 76,000 to 80,000 by the time the game is played there. The additional seats will be located in the end zones or, as Rozelle called it, "the Flipper area." The home team Dolphins' mascot used to perform in that area of the stadium.

Rozelle said the owners were split on the site selection and neither the Orange Bowl nor the Rose Bowl was a unanimous choice. "There was support for other cities," the commissioner said. But both Miami and Pasadena received the required 21 votes.

Still on the agenda of the owners is the selection of future Pro Bowl sites. The 1978 game is set for Jan. 23 in Tampa, Fla. and Rozelle indicated that one or two more Pro Bowls would be awarded before the owners end their meetings Wednesday. A large number of league and non-league cities are bidding to host the annual all-star game.

Also being discussed were some proposed rule changes and the league's television contract situation. Contracts with the three networks expire after the 1977 season and negotiations for new agreements will begin next month.

Harris traded to Chargers

LOS ANGELES — Quarterback James Harris has been traded by the Los Angeles Rams to the San Diego Chargers for "future draft choices," the Rams announced Tuesday night.

Harris, 29, who has played seven years in the National Football League, was the leading passer in the National Football Conference in the 1976 season, according to the rating system used by the NFL.

But Harris lost his starting job to rookie Pat Haden late in the season and has repeatedly voiced his unhappiness with the quarterback situation on the Rams.

Los Angeles signed longtime New York Jets star quarterback Joe Namath to a contract last month.

And in this corner of the track...

Groom John Polston looks ready for 'World' championship.

If horses were like prizefighters, the air would be ringing today with grandiose plans for a knock-down, drag-out duel for racing's 3-year-old "Championship of the World."

The principals would be Seattle Slew, America's new wonder horse, and the pride of the British Isles, The Minstrel, winner of the English Derby. Pronounce it "Darby," please.

The site would be a neutral one — Paris. The event: the Arc de Triomphe, one of Europe's classics. Besides the thundering hooves of the season's most notable sophomores, the test also would match the wits of French-born Jean Cruguet, Seattle Slew's reinsman, and Lester Piggott, the leathery British veteran who rode The Minstrel to Piggott's eighth English Derby victory.

Such a race boggles the imagination, but it won't take place — not this year, at least.

"I wouldn't think of it this year," said Billy Turper, the tall, soft-spoken trainer of Seattle Slew. "It would be too much of a strain on this horse. Next year? Maybe, we'll wait and see."

Vincent O'Brien, Irish trainer of the English Derby champion, had his challenge flying across the Atlantic well before Seattle Slew destroyed seven rivals in the 1½ mile Belmont Stakes and became the 10th horse in more than 100 years of thoroughbred racing to capture the Triple Crown — the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

He became the first ever to do it without a single splotch on his record.

"I reckon we would welcome a shot at Seattle Slew in the Arc de Triomphe in September," O'Brien said with typical British restraint. "We rather think we could take him."

Seattle Slew now has won nine races in a row, without a defeat, and he's going to be permitted to munch on oats in his stall and take it easy for a while.

If anybody gets a shot at him in the near future, it will be Forego, king of the stakes winners. They say Forego is chomping at the bit to take on this young upstart, maybe in the Jockey Gold Cup or Marlboro Cup.

"It would be unfair to take Seattle Slew to Europe this soon," Turner said. "Racing over there, you know, is left to right, on grass and up and down hill. I might get Seattle Slew accustomed to racing clockwise, instead of counterclockwise, on a flat track and on dirt.

"But to try it on grass and up and down hill is unthinkable. I would have to take him to Europe and train him quite hard before subjecting him to such a task."

Some day, Turner and his bosses, Mickey and Karen Taylor and Dr. James and Sally Hill, may have to do it. This looks like a horse that belongs to the ages — and to all continents.

It would be unfair to restrict him to these particular boundaries. — by Associated Press

Pate set to defend title

TULSA, Okla. — Jerry Pate will be defending his title this week in the 77th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

For a while, there was very considerable doubt he'd be able to. He was afflicted with an ailment that defied diagnosis. He was barely able to hold a golf club, let alone do anything with it.

It took a trip to Tuscaloosa, Ala., to put him back in the pro golf business. And, although he's been able to play only once in the weeks since the Masters, the 23-year-old Pate is convinced he has a chance to become the first man to successfully defend the national championship since Ben Hogan in 1951.

"Of course I expect to win," he said after a practice round over the Southern Hills Country Club course, a typically tough, demanding layout that will serve as the site of the Open championship that gets underway Thursday.

According to the ancient Chinese lunar calendar, 1977 is the Year of the Snake. But as far as Ohio State basketball fans are concerned 1977 is the Year of the Buckeye, at least concerning high school basketball recruiting.

Ohio State, which has been floundering in the Big Ten's second division much of the time since the fabulous Lucas - Havlicek - Siegfried era, this spring led the nation in prep hoop recruiting.

Coach Eldon Miller, in his second year at Columbus, signed five high school All-Americans from the Nation's Top 100 high school list to lead the recruiting parade.

"Heck, we needed a great recruiting year just to keep up with the rest of the league," said Miller. And he was right. The Big Ten led all the nation's major college conferences in recruiting this spring, knocking the Atlantic Coast Conference from the top spot for the first time in several years.

"We feel we got a nice variety of players, but it may be another year or so before we are a league contender," said Miller. "We probably will be starting three freshmen and two sophomores this winter." The Buckeyes may be the only team in the league with a starting five that hasn't even started shaving.

Indiana was right behind the Buckeyes nationally, with Southern California, LSU, Michigan, Notre Dame, North Carolina, Duke, Michigan State and Texas completing the Top 10 in the recruiting rankings.

Coach Bobby Knight signed three outstanding new Hoosier recruits for his team, which is fast getting a transient reputation. The Hoosiers have lost six players through departures the last two seasons. It is not true that the new recruits have been asked to not unpack their bags until after their sophomore year.

While traditional national basketball powerhouses generally did well in recruiting this spring — with the notable exception of once - invincible UCLA — none of the "biggies" got the top high school player in the country.

That honor goes to relatively obscure Iona College of New York. Iona signed 6-10 Jeff Ruland of Long Island, who proved in several post-season all-star games he was the best of this spring's prospects. He was MVP at such prestigious all-star outings as McDonald's Derby Classic at Louisville and scored as high as 45 points in another all-star game.

Why did he decide to enroll at Iona, after eliminating Kentucky and Indiana from his final list? "Iona is only about 50 miles from my home," he explained. "I got to know the players real well there. It's close to home and I just decided to stay in my home area. Also, they are a Division I school and are upgrading their schedule to include some big-name teams."

Of the Top 100 players available this spring, only six colleges signed three or more of the luminaries. Getting three or more were Ohio State, Indiana, Southern California, LSU, Michigan, and Notre Dame. Getting two Top 100 players each were North Carolina, Duke, Michigan State, Texas, Auburn, Illinois, Tennessee, Detroit, South Carolina, Kentucky, Wake Forest, Minnesota and Vanderbilt.

Most major coaches feel they have to sign an average of two of the Top 100 players per year to keep their programs at a championship level.

Two of the biggest surprises in the 1977 recruiting derby was the No. 4 ranking by LSU and the No. 35 ranking by UCLA.

LSU has not been accustomed to such lofty perch. "I'm tired of coming close to beating some of the big teams and then getting congratulated on gaining moral victories. We want outright wins. And if we can't win with the kind of players we signed this spring, then they can fire the coach — it'll be my fault," says Bengal boss Dale Brown.

The demise of UCLA is also puzzling to many experts. The Bruins got practically any player they wanted during the John Wooden Golden Era. But Coach Wooden has been gone for over two years and all is not well with the Pauley Pavilion Gang.

Southern California and (believe it or not) Texas swept the talent-rich Los Angeles area of hoop hotshots this spring. The Trojans got three top players and the Longhorns also got three impressive Californians (including the Los Angeles player-of-the-year for the second straight year). UCLA wound up with only one good prospect.

"There's no doubt that Southern Cal had the best recruiting year of anybody in the Pac 8," says Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller, whose school ranked second in that league's recruiting scramble this spring.

Perhaps the two most celebrated high schoolers this year were 6-7 Eugene Banks of Philadelphia and 6-6 Albert King of New York City. While these players got most of the national ink, basketball experts generally agree that Ruland and 6-7 Earvin Johnson of Lansing, Mich., were as good or better prospects. These four compose the top players on the 1977 Top 100 list. Banks signed early with Duke, Johnson with Michigan State and King has reportedly narrowed his choices to Arizona State and Maryland.

While all coaches dream of getting an all-star "sleeper" each spring, rarely does it happen. There were, however, a couple of players in the Top 100 this spring that pretty well fit that mold.

The best of this category was 6-3 Carter Scott of Barberton, Ohio. This youngster was generally overshadowed — publicity-wise — on his own team by twin guards Mark and Marty Bodnar. But the puma-quick, high-leaping Scott, compared by some to the great pro star Dave Bing, zoomed all the way to sixth place on the Top 100 list after shining in several post-season all-star games.

And it's usually not easy to hid a 6-10, 250-pound player who averages about 40 points a game. But that was the case of Chuck Aleksinas of Morris, Conn. Few major colleges had heard anything about this New England giant until late this spring.

Ohio University felt it pretty well had the big fella "hid out" but then the University of North Carolina - Charlotte got into the act. Then Kentucky's Joe Hall got wind of the latent talent up East. Hall persuaded Aleksinas to sign with U.K. The youngster then starred against many of the nation's best talents in the McDonald's Derby Classic all-star game at Louisville. His performance at Louisville left many coaches saying "Where in the world did that big Greek kid come from? He's great." One coach said he might murder one of his own assistants. "He's Greek . . . and to top it off, he's from Connecticut."

For Miller's, Dave Mercurio singled twice, Roy Robustelli doubled, Tony Carlucci singled twice, Mark Worth singled, Adolph Correa singled, Phil Boyston singled and Walt Hawkins singled.

The Professionals workmanlike fourth inning rally spelled an 11-4 defeat for the Livermore Jaycees.

Ray Street singled twice for the winners while John Cardinelli singled twice, Joe Benjamin singled, Art Hermosillo singled twice and clouted a home run, Don Riel singled three times, Mick Riel singled three times, Harry Engstrom doubled three times and singled, Art Hill singled, Tony Flores singled and Don Hamoste singled.

The losers got two singles from Dan Brown while Pete Pacabilla singled twice, Bob Johnson singled twice, Tim Henshaw singled, Bob Pleva singled twice, Larry Griffith singled twice, John Arguillo singled, Bruce Chappel singled twice and Clark Abrahamson singled.

Hayward Pallet scored three times in the top of the seventh inning to take an 8-7 lead over Carousel Carpets, but they took too long in doing so and when the game curfew was called, the Carpets came out a 7-5 winner, as the score reverted to the end of the sixth inning.

Jaryl Hudson singled for Hayward while Jimmy Gillette doubled in the cancelled inning, Bill Lawrence singled twice, including one in the cancelled inning, Wendell Olsen singled, Mike Gillette blasted a home run that was wiped out by the score reversion, Steven Young singled twice, Lorne Cox tripled, Monte Young tripled and singled.

For the Carpets, Dennis Lloyd singled, Alan Money singled twice, including one that was called back, Paul Wilkinson homered and singled, Eric Bowman tripled and singled, Bruce Weese singled twice and doubled and Dan Zuercher singled twice.

Charlie Brown Realtors won both ends of a senior Babe Ruth baseball double header Sunday over Newark, 6-4 and 4-1.

Newark, however, won the opener of the series on Saturday, 2-0.

In the Saturday game, former Foothill High School pitcher Mike Krikorian allowed just four hits, but hurt himself with wildness, yielding a first inning run on a single and two walks and another in the seventh via a walk and two hits.

Despite seven hits in the game, Brown could not score.

In Sunday's first game, Steve Cox went to the hill and fired a four-hitter to go with a 3-for-4 day at the plate, scoring three runs. John Bachleda and Cary Dean were both 2-for-4 while Krikorian was 2-for-2.

In the second contest, Jeff Benton was on the hill for Charlie Brown and allowed five hits before being relieved by Mike Rohrer in the seventh frame. After Benton filled the bases with two walks and a single with one gone in the seventh, Rohrer, a lefty, came in from the bullpen and struck out the remainder of the side.

Cox, the ex-Granada High player, was again hot with the lumber, going 2-for-3 in the nightcap to bring his totals to 6-for-11 on the series and .533 for the season.

Braves nip Phillies, 11-0

The Casa Verde Braves nipped the Texaco Phillies, 11-0, in Pleasanton National Little League 'A' division action recently as Dave Thompson doubled twice, Eric Hill singled and doubled, Tony Bobosky had two singles and Bob Gunier doubled twice and tripled.

Jeff Backer had three hits for the losers, while Ron Perego singled, Jenny Ferrolito played outstanding defense.

The Pizza Hut Pirates beat the Master Jack's Giants, 18-11, behind the hitting of Jim Sashnik and Steve Woodfill.

Aquatic test

The NorCal Aquatics AAU swim team is holding try-outs through Friday of this week.

The team is open to youngsters between five and 18 years of age, regardless of current swimming proficiency. Those interested should bring a swim suit and a towel to the Dublin High School swimming pool between 3 and 4 p.m.

For further information, call Don Schinnerer, 820-0659, or coach Bill Radley, 820-4508.

Baseball school

Casey and his sister can go to bat during a six week summer baseball program being offered by the Valley Community Services District to girls and boys ages 5-12 years old.

The program is designed to be a learning experience stressing baseball basics.

The six week program will be broken into two parts. The first three weeks will consist of instruction to give participants an overall view of baseball skills. Specific areas of instruction will include throwing, catching, baserunning, sliding, infield and outfield positions plus batting.

Teams will be formed according to age during the following three weeks. Team members will receive a baseball cap and jersey with his/her team name on it.

The session will run from July 11 through Aug. 19. Registration began June 13. Deadline for registration is June 24. Cost per child is $6.

Instruction and games will take place at Dublin Sports Grounds, 6800 Dublin Blvd.

Girls and boys ages 5 to 8 years will meet Monday and Wednesday from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The age group from 9 to 12 years will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

For further information call 828-7711.

NCGA Juniors

PEBBLE BEACH — Entries for the Northern California Golf Association's 48th Junior Amateur Championships are now being accepted, event chairman Henry Hinds announced here this week.

Qualifying for the tournament will be conducted at twelve sectional sites, Friday, July 22. In addition to Diablo Country Club, where valley golfers tried out a year ago, qualifying will be conducted at Baywood Golf and Country Club in Eureka, Butte Creek Golf California Golf Course in South San Francisco, Del Rio Golf and Country Club in Modesto, Ft. Ord Golf Course (Bayonet Course), Ft. Washington Country Club in Fresno, Meadow Club in the North Bay, Menlo Country Club on the Peninsula, San Jose Country Club, Santa Rosa Golf and Country Club and Valley Hi Country Club in Sacramento.

One hundred and twenty-eight boys will advance to the championships, Aug. 1-5 at Lake Merced Golf and Country Club in Daly City. The tourney is open to all boys aged 12 through 17 for a comprehensive fee of $1.

Applications may be obtained at golf shops throughout Northern California or from the NCGA, P.O. Box NCGA, Pebble Beach, Ca., 93953 or by calling (408) 625-4653. Entries close July 8 at 5 p.m.

Boot camp

The Tri-Valley Soccer Camp's first session will get underway July 18 and advance sign-ups are now available.

The cost is $20 per child per session, consisting of 20 hours of instruction. Family rates are available as is a team discount.

All camp instructors have had collegiate, national or international experience. Goals of the camp are said to be to have each student obtain their own level of proficiency, develop individual skills, emphasize poise and sportsmanship, improve game technique, stress modern drills, teach basic systems of American soccer play and to provide an enjoyable experience.

Further information is available by calling, 443-0811.

Happy handball

Registration for the Happy Tiger Handball Tournament to be played at Wall 'n' Ball in Livermore June 24-26 is currently being taken.

Cost is $14, including a pair of nylon shorts, ACE balls (the loser keeps the ball), hospitality table and engraved prizes for the top two places in each division. Entries must be received by the club by Saturday, with all divisions limited to 16 entrants.

Starting times for the Open, B and C divisions will be put in the mail Monday. Play will be best of three 21-point games, all refereed, with a five-minute warm-up period.

June Action will begin Friday 24 at 5 p.m. and continue till Sunday at 8 p.m.

Further information is available from tourney director Fred Bancalari, 837-8241 or club owner Charlie Patterson, 443-1033.

Valley Jr. net

The tenth annual Valley Junior Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Livermore Tennis Club, will be conducted June 24 through 26 at Granada High School.

The tourney, open to all junior members of the Livermore Tennis Club and non-members from the valley area, will be conducted in age groups of 18 and under, 16 and under, 14 and under and 12 and under. The United States Tennis Association definition of age will be used, i.e. age of the player on Sept. 30, 1977.

All events will be conducted in singles only. Players who lose their first match will go into the consolation bracket of their division. First and second place trophies will be awarded in the championship bracket and a first place trophy in each consolation bracket.

Entry fee is $3 and entry forms may be obtained from the Team Shop, Del Valle Tennis Club, Serve and Volley Tennis Shop all in Livermore; and Ability Tennis and Trophies in Pleasanton.

Entries must be received no later than Monday by tourney director Dick Carallo, 845 Leland Court, Livermore.

Further information is available by calling Corallo at 447-5809.

Pharmacist has "tried them all..." discovers weight control program that really works!

Pharmacist Dan Smith of Burger's Drug Store in St. Charles, Illinois is a NaturSlim "believer" after losing 18 pounds in just two weeks. After hearing so much about the NaturSlim program from customers and seeing the excellent results they were having, Dan decided to try it himself.

"In my many years as a pharmacist, I've seen and tried numerous weight-loss plans, but none have worked as well for me as NaturSlim. And NaturSlim is very nutritional too!"

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily . . . and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh-ins, starve myself or do any special exercises." With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

The next time you are in the St. Charles area, stop by Burger's Drugs and see Dan yourself. He'll tell you personally what he thinks about NaturSlim!

Dublin's choice

Supervisor Fred Cooper has a right to his opinion, and even his ultimate vote, on the question of Dublin's municipal options. But we think his strong pitch for "annexing Dublin to Pleasanton" was misguided, and poorly timed. Cooper was in fact thinking more of villages like Castro Valley and San Lorenzo, and the sizeable drain on county funds which those communities create, when he advised a meeting of Alameda County mayors that "annexation to the nearest available city" is the only way to go.

It is not in fact the only option, and certainly not for a self-contained community like Dublin. There is ample evidence that Dublin creates no such drain on county funds, and may in fact have the potential to be a self-supporting city. That is what detailed studies by a community group must clearly substantiate before incorporation or any other option — can be submitted to the voters.

We think Dublin is approaching the challenge of its future intelligently, calmly, and with the deliberate intent which seems to point that thriving hub away from the very problem which now bothers Supervisor Cooper: One — more unincorporated village reliant forever on county services.

That is not what Dublinites want; neither is it an option county government can tolerate. Supervisor Cooper should be using his office to encourage Dublin's present course of study.

Babies, homes

The well-publicized decline in the birth rate will not mean a lessening in demands for new single-family housing.

That disquieting report comes from the Association of Bay Area Governments. ABAG has concluded the nine Bay Area counties are at an all-time low in birth rate projections... less than 1.5 new babies per woman of child-bearing age. That's well below half the national birth rate in 1960.

All of which might be good news for those who worry about the spectre of growth... overcrowding, destroying the environment, using up the land. But on at least two of those counts, the Bay Area still has troubles.

A parallel ABAG report advises us that, while our typical family may be smaller, the demand for single-family homes will not diminish. "We'll simply have more two-person households," the association states.

Since 1970, the typical Contra Costa County household has dropped from 3.19 people to just 2.78; in Alameda County, that average family dipped to 2.67, and is expected to shrink to 2.22 people per household by 1990.

But the great American dream of "a home of our own" will not diminish. To the contrary, we will need even more dwellings as adults spread themselves out in a thinner layer across an ever-expanding "suburban sprawl."

Something to think about, as we look to the future of the 600-square-mile land mass in this one basin.

Ugly message

There were some really great moments at the Livermore Rodeo — a day of sun and sport and excellent athletes. People were getting together, eating and drinking, having a good time in the sunshine.

But the event was spoiled just a bit for me, I think, when I got back to my car and found an ugly symbol of something I thought existed only in the past.

There were a couple of flyers, printed in black and white.

And they were some of the most upsetting things I've seen in years around California.

One showed a picture of a black man. "He may be YOUR equal," said the words, "but he sure isn't OURS." There was an address for "Knights of the Klu Klux Klan."

Another paper, stuck under the window of many parked cars, like some kind of festive announcement, showed a hooded figure and read: "I want you for the Klu Klux Klan."

The organization listed this time was, so very ironically, called "God and Country," based in Castro Valley. The Klan, it seems, are based in Hayward.

I stared at those flyers for a long time, absolutely amazed, and at the same time frightened, for this was very close to home.

As a child who grew up with only very vague memories of civil rights clashes of the '50's, when Martin Luther King was just beginning to fight for equal rights, I had almost taken it for granted that racism was something of the past.

I'd been getting used to thinking that, except for strange fanatics like the Nazis, racist groups were really dead, except maybe in the deep South. Perhaps, I thought, these incidents should be expected there, but not in liberal, tolerant California.

So maybe it was only one man, or woman, who took the time to print up those papers, and took the time to put them under the windshields of all those cars.

That's still an awful lot of hate trying to spread itself around.

It's sad to realize how many times we've seen that phrase "God and Country" bantered around to support a cause. But this time, it was a sobering experience, because it was being used to conduct an honest — to — goodness hate campaign. The "God and Country" organization did not hand out their literature in person, face — to — face. They did their work while people were sitting together in the stands, watching the athletes and the sport, and having a good time.

I'm just hoping that people at the rodeo — black and white and Asian and Indian — will remember that good time, the times that happen when people get together.

And then perhaps we can all forget — for good — the ugly stuff we found on the way out.

Letters to the Times

Win or lose

Editor, The Times:

I am writing to express my disgust with Mr. Laird, the principal of Amador High School. I fail to comprehend how anyone on the high school level can justify hiring a person specifically to fill a coaching job with secondary teaching duties. I think that the community needs an academic teacher much more than a coach.

Since Fred Wood did not retire from his teaching duties how was the opening justified? Personally, I think that too much emphasis is placed on the Win philosophy and too little on the real purpose of high school. I think that athletics are great and needed, but not to the extent that appears evident by Mr. Laird's actions. High School athletics are designed to build character and supplement the student's school life. However, my observation is that this is not the case with the present coaching methods. It is a shame the coaches have to stress the do-or-die philosophy.

I sincerely hope for the kids sake that someone or some group of school officials re-evaluate their priorities concerning their athletic program so that it will benefit the right people, the students.

Missed award

Mr. Thomas Savero
Head of Athletic Dept.
Livermore High School

I am writing this letter as a proud mother who was looking forward to the Track Award Night. After the potluck dinner my family and I waited for my son Jim to be called on stage with other members of the track team for his award. We sat for over one hour and his name was never called. The whole track team, except Jim, was on the stage receiving awards. His name was never called or mentioned. How a boy who has been on the track team for four years could be forgotten, I will never understand. After the awards were given out, Jim went to Mr. Nicks and asked why he did not receive his award. With a grin on his face Mr. Nicks replied, "I forgot you."

I hope that no other parent or son will ever have to go through this hurting and disappointing experience. There is nothing that can be done for my son now, because awards night is over, but he is very bitter. He has refused the late award and championship patch which he so deserves.

I am writing this letter for only one purpose, that maybe this sad mishap will be used as an example in the future. I hope that coaches will take time to make sure everyone has the award that they have earned.

I wish writing this letter against Jim's wishes but as a sad mother I felt I must do so. To me this will be a unforgivable mistake.

Your article of Friday June 10 appearing in the Pleasanton Times has you stating that the C.H.R.D. committee is composed of "Idle people with nothing to do." My interpretation of this remark is that you feel that we are a group of old fogies sitting in rocking chairs.

It may interest you to know that the most of C.H.R.D. is composed of people in your age bracket and are tax payers and we feel that our money would be more equitably spent through action and not on "Consultant" fees....

Here's a little survey of what's going on in book titles from the human growth movement.

"Consciousness: What is It? How do We Lose It?" is by Clyde Fizzipie, director of the National Association of Liberated Drinkers. Like his first book, "I'm Okay, Thash All Right, I'm Okay", this one gets into what alcohol therapy has done for him.

"The World as Seen Through the Eye of a Camel", by Rev. Swami George Tillet, is by a native of India who came to the United States to pursue the holy path to Enlightenment. Much of the book is from the perspective of his current calling, selling used cars in Los Angeles.

"Self - Dentistry Without Pain" is the topic of Jimmy Wolkerstorfer's book about how people can drop the expensive

LAVWMA keeps harping about the salt content in affluent from Pleasanton - Livermore and VCSO. Have any precautions been taken to keep this salt out? Does LAVWMA know that salt rechargeable water softeners are illegal? ... you rely only on consultants for answers. Tull's rights

Editor, The Times:

At last John Edmonds has Figuratively "Donned the robes of Holiness", and "Blessed the sewer business", in "His" editorial for Sunday, June 12...

The statement that "the challengers to local government have been small in number" is eminently correct, but, the American Revolution was also instituted by a small group of "revolutionaries"... Of course, if John has not become a Citizen of the United States, he is under no obligation to support the United States Constitution... Even so, I am sure he would be the first to be counted if his newspaper was denied the right of free speech, by... ejection of his reporters from open public meetings, or any other constraint on publication of his paper. All of this has happened to the Committee for Conservation...

John's defence of the Establishment includes a statement about a State Water Board Mandate... I would like to quote that Mandate.

"It should be noted that the recommended facilities constitutes a conceptual physical guide to attaining the goals and objectives of the plan. Not a Mandate for Wastewater Treatment Construction." They go on to say the plans "are Believed to be the optimal strategy" and "the Implementation Plan is not a mandate, it need not be adhered to with respect to service area, treatment method, location, and discharge area..." The only Mandate... is that We No Longer Discharge Our Clear Sewer Water Down Alameda Creek During Dry Weather... The Committee for Conservation has documented the fact that other comparable areas of our country are using methods, which not only can pay their Capital Costs, but also can produce a profit...

When our Government participates in subversion of the election process, misuses government funds to do so, denies it's citizens the rights of redress from such wrongs, actually arrest citizens requiring their inalienable rights be complied with, and have three, supposedly "free" newspapers actively attempting to further such actions, I am reminded of our Declaration of Independence and it's list of injustices against King George. I would suggest that you read it and secede from this bunch of thieves and liars by advocating the peaceful revolution known as Recall and Referendum.

Round the town

Is there another month anywhere like June? I think not. It is, as the poet observes, as rare as a day in.

Pope Gregory is credited with dividing our Christian year into 12 more - or - less equal parts. He goofed. Left June saddled with a heavy portion of the year's burden.

I have been doing some research on June. Gathering quotes on this, the sixth month in Greg's calendar:

"Mygawd, do you mean we have to attend another graduation ceremony again this year!" This was taken from the memoirs of the father of 12, who has since had an operation.

"I know you were counting on my enrolling at UC for my law degree, Dad, but you see I just learned I'm pregnant and..." This from the same set of memoirs, taken from father's pocket when they fished him out of the lake.

"Why didn't you tell us you were first - string catcher for the Little League Giants before I booked the entire family into a month's vacation at Tahiti?" Same father, before operation, and before lake.

"Are we going to air condition the kitchen this year, like you promised, or are you going to renew your season's tickets to the Oakland Raiders?" Spoken by a woman with no sense of values.

The Romans had considerable respect for July. Named after their good servant, Julius Caesar. So too, August, which gave Emperor Augustus his annual due. Juno was just another God in a long line of gods. No particular significance.

But that was before modern man, and the United States Congress.

In June, 1977, this nation is called upon to observe National Safe Boating Week, (the father with the 12 kids who was found in the lake would get a kick out of that); Let's Play Golf Week; World Environment Day; National Fraternal Week; Flag Week and National Little League Baseball Week.

It is also in June when the United States Army observes its birthday; it marks the fifth anniversary of the Watergate burglary; and it was on June 14, 1972 that the EPA banned all use of DDT.

And all that in just the first 17 days of June. You are beginning to appreciate, I'll bet, the heavy load carried by poor June.

"But you said when we put the new roof on last summer that this would be the summer we could figure on a golfing vacation in Hawaii." This is an annual June lament by a poor slob who has yet to realize a woman is not to be trusted, from one June to the next. (She has a five - year plan for home improvements and Hawaii is not even on her second priority list.)

"Hi! It's me again. Has dadeeo given any hints yet as to what he wants for Father's Day?" This message is transmitted long distance, by loving - daughter - at - college. She will transmit the same message many, many times in the first two weeks of June. She will also choose those occasions to announce that: 1. She is overdrawn again, but just slightly; 2. The summer job - away - from - home is great, but pays somewhat less than anticipated; and, 3. Rent on summer apartment is somewhat more than budgeted but not to worry, she's signed a two - year lease that will reap great profit once she finds 23 other girls to share the mansion.

"Doesn't she realize that these calls are costing me a fortune? How can she be thinking of buying expensive Father's Day gifts when she's already overdrawn? If she signs that lease I'll KILL HER!" All of these questions/statements are made by loving father who is beginning to learn that raising daughter is almost as impossible, and every bit as expensive, as raising wife.

"Why don't you stretch out on the sofa and watch the baseball game while I make you a double martini?" This is said by wife (see above) who has long since discovered that the way to a man's heart is through his ulcer. She will say the same thing often, during June.

"Whew!" This was the traditional June proclamation offered by Emperor Maulai Ismail of Morocco who had 300 wives and 700 concubines. He lived to be 81, leaving 548 sons and 340 daughters. However it must be noted that Maulai accomplished all this before there were such things as graduation ceremonies, Little League Baseball or long - distance telephone calls.

"We ought to do something for the old boy, even if it's just a card with a stupid drawing of a golfer on it, or something." This was of course the memorable statement of one Mrs. John Bruce Dodd. She said it in 1909, when first advancing the idea of "Father's Day." It was 60 years before Mrs. Dodd's tribute to fathers caught on as a national observance, and only then when Mother Bell grasped the profit potential of June's six most memorable words...

Anita's code

Anita Bryant probably would drop her orange juice, but there is a new theory kicking around about certain aspects of the Bible as they relate to homosexuality. Cultural anthropologists and Biblical scholars have taken a look at Jewish society as it existed thousands of years ago and think they have an explanation for the heavy patriarchy that developed in that society. It seems that many of the males in those days were homosexuals. And as Bryant pointed out, homosexuals don't reproduce, at least not with each other. Without reproduction, you have a tough time passing on the local land to your descendants, that early form of capitalism. So the heterosexuals who wrote what later came to be called "books of the Bible" put a bum rap on homosexuality. Get people married and get that small farm in the country going was their philosophy. The family unit was important for that and the attitude against homosexuality has been around ever since in the Judeo - Christian tradition.

It's an interesting and plausible theory, though I doubt it will ever find its way into Anita Bryant's head, even during a pause in those "conversations with God". Bryant is a fundamentalist, which means she takes all those Biblical words literally. That could cause some confusion in her mind, since there seem to be a lot of opposing views on the same topics in the Big Book. But more important, modern fundamentalists are like old time Pharisees: they adhere to the letter of the law, ignore the spirit.

And obeying the law is not what religion is all about, no matter what the religion. The letter of the law is there only as a base on which to build one's own transcendental discoveries. A minister worth his or her salt helps develop that religious experience, that growth, that love for others, whether they be gay, straight, Left, Right, indifferent, or whatever. It is like the grain of sand prodding the oyster to produce the pearl.

Two Biblical quotes in a newspaper discussion of the Miami gay rights ordinance illustrated very well what I am talking about. One quote, on Bryant's side of the argument, said, "If a man also lie with mankind as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination." The other quote, repeated by a gay, said, "If you do away with the yoke, the clenched fist, the wicked word, if you give bread to the hungry and relief to the oppressed, your light shall rise in the darkness and your shadows become like the moon." The first quote was from Leviticus, a book on which the original Pharisees relied heavily for their legalistic approach to life. The second quote was from Isaiah, my favorite prophet. Isaiah was a soul disturber who felt it is almost the definition of religion that it comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable.

Anita Bryant and her friends are among the comfortable. They assent to the continued persecution of a minority, the homosexual, one more roadblock in the slow, steady march of human rights progress that has represented the best of philosophy and feelings in religion throughout human history.

Bryant and her friends object specifically to gays as teachers, thinking they will "convert" their students to a life of homosexuality or at least make that lifestyle acceptable in a every corner of America. The fact is this: if a kid is gay, he or she will grow up gay and know it by the time he or she reaches teenage. As far as accepting the lifestyle is concerned, why not? In a democracy, we can tolerate anything that doesn't hurt the other person. The fears of the anti - gays are similar to the fears of the anti - blacks in suburbia who think big concentrations of minorities mean they'll want to marry children of the whites.

Parents who create a loving environment at home shouldn't fear anyone outside the home because they can teach their children tolerance for others.

Berry's World

"That sounds great, Rosy, but now tell me about your trip IN ENGLISH!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a homosexual and for two years I've been living with a man I love. We have one major source of contention and that's the fact that my parents don't know I'm gay. My lover says it's dishonest and is negatively affecting my life and my development as a person. He thinks I can't be honest with him in small day-to-day ways. He's got me so uptight that it's affecting what used to be a good relationship with my parents. Now when I see them I'm nervous and feel guilty. Do you think I should come out of the closet with them? —S.J.

DEAR S.J.: This is something only you can answer and I feel it's unwise of anyone to pressure you into doing something you yourself question. It might be quite right for the man you live with to tell his parents and quite wrong for you. It depends on each of you as individuals and the personality and temperament of your parents.

There are situations when honesty is needlessly painful. It may relieve the guilt of one party while dealing an irresponsible, powerful blow to another. Sometimes honesty is not a show of courage but merely selfish and self-serving. Of course, honesty involves risk-taking and as long as we're the only ones involved, we should be ready and willing to take these risks. When we do, however, we should make sure we're not threatening others' sense of pride and well-being.

Your parents may already be aware of your life. If they are and if they want you to be more candid with them, they'll probably let you know in a number of ways. If, on the other hand, they are the type who are embarrassed by intimate discussions, you should respect this and not try to change them.

As for your friend, remind him that his parents are his and yours are yours. You don't always have to agree.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm an intuitive person and I think I know myself, but this doesn't seem to help me at all in love. I have a habit of falling in love almost at first sight but love rarely lasts more than a month. One of us loses interest then, so either I'm hurting the woman or I'm being hurt. I don't like this but don't know what to do about it. —N.N.

DEAR N.N.: It might help if you take time out from romance, sit down, pencil in hand, and examine all the things you find attractive in women. There seems to be a definite pattern to your infatuations and it may be that you're consistently attracted to a type that is basically wrong for you. When you have decided the qualifications you demand, try then to see if these are qualities you would like in yourself. If they are, it might be wise to try to develop these qualities in yourself and seek something else in others.

Highly intuitive people actually tend to have more difficulty in achieving happy marriages than those who are less accomplished at sensing a partner's inner thoughts.

One study revealed that intuitive people are more likely to remain single than the non-intuitive. Obviously, this doesn't mean you will either remain single or be unhappy in love. It does suggest that you are wise in realizing something is wrong with your love life.

You may have unrealistic expectations and be seeking a kind of perfection that doesn't exist. Real love takes time to develop and demands a lot of compromise. From your letter, I'd say you may be confusing love with physical attraction.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DID GREENLAND GET ITS NAME?"

A. ERIC THE RED, A VIKING OUTCAST WHO SAILED THERE IN 982, NAMED THE ISLAND GREENLAND TO ATTRACT SETTLERS.

The world's biggest island is Greenland. It lies in the North Atlantic Ocean, between North America and Europe.

Eric the Red, a Viking outcast who sailed there in 982, gave the island its name. He wanted settlers to be eager to go to this new land, so he made it sound attractive by naming it Greenland.

But Greenland isn't really a green land at all. During its short summer, only the narrow coastal valleys are green.

Most of the island is covered by a great ice cap. Only a few rocky peaks stick up through the thick sheet of ice and snow.

In spite of its size, not many people live in Greenland. Most of the people have both Eskimo and Danish ancestors.

Fishing is the major industry. Other Greenlanders hunt for seals, and some raise sheep and work as miners.

There are important weather stations in Greenland. Their reports help weathermen in Europe and North America forecast the weather.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Opportunity surrounds you today in your work or career. Its manifestation depends on how well you're able to perform for others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

There's someone important, either romantically or socially, with whom you can strengthen your bonds today. Let this person know you care.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Dismiss any apprehensions about the outcome of events today. When everything is tallied, you'll see you were far luckier than you realized.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

There's a strong likelihood you'll be more successful with your big plans today than you will with small ones. Concentrate on major projects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

The timing may be ripe today to increase the price for services you have to offer or to tap the boss for that raise he's been promising.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two years ago my husband and I traveled to Colorado. Two days after we arrived my husband had a stroke. The doctors said it was probably hastened by the high altitude. His right side was paralyzed but since then he has regained his speech and can walk with a walker. He has no use of his right arm and hand.

Does this high altitude reason mean we can never again go to Colorado or would he have had a stroke wherever he was?

The doctors said it was a blood clot.

DEAR READER — Exposure to high altitude does not cause a blood clot. The decreased oxygen in the air at higher altitudes may stress the heart and circulation.

If an artery in the brain was already narrowed so that there could be no increase in circulation when needed and the air was poor in oxygen it could lead to localized inadequate supply of oxygen to brain tissue supplied by that artery. Since only part of the oxygen in the blood is taken out of the blood circulated to the brain there is some reserve oxygen available. Lack of oxygen leads to mental confusion. Patients with disease of the arteries to the brain are sometimes benefited by increasing the oxygen they breathe. There are reports of decreased mental confusion in such patients after breathing air under increased pressure or increasing the oxygen in the blood stream.

If the damage has already been done and the rest of the circulation to your husband's brain is normal it is not likely that altitude will hurt him — provided he has a healthy heart and lungs and is not anemic.

I am confident he could tolerate altitudes up to 5,000 feet, about the altitude of Denver. The change in oxygen in air at that altitude is so minor as to be of little consequence. This altitude is often spoken as the physiological threshold, because one sees so few changes, if any, on exposure to altitudes up to this level.

People who have had strokes or who have vascular disease to the arteries to the brain should be certain that they have an optimal oxygen supply. An unrecognized anemia may be a factor in triggering a stroke? Why? Because the anemia may decrease the oxygen supply to the brain tissue and when that is combined with artery disease an area of the brain may be damaged from lack of oxygen.

North didn't raise spades in spite of holding four little cards in that suit. He had already raised hearts with 4-3-3 distribution and wanted to show that his hand was balanced with its high cards all in the minor suits.

South gave up all thought of seven and just jumped to six hearts. West opened a trump and South was in a fine slam. If spades broke 3-2 he was home. Was there any chance if they broke 4-1?

South saw there was. He drew trumps with three leads and led a low spade. Maybe the winner of that trick would try to cash the ace of clubs. No such luck but the hand made anyway.

East simply led a low club. South ruffed, ran off all his trumps and the three diamonds while making sure to win the last diamond in dummy. Poor West was squeezed. He had to chuck a spade in order to hang on to the ace of clubs.

Husband and wife singing sensation Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis, Jr., will host their own musical-comedy-variety show, "The Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis Jr. Show," which premieres as a six-week summer replacement series beginning Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 10 and 44.

Couple Gets Own Show

Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis, Jr., one of the music world's newest husband and wife combinations, star in their own half hour musical comedy variety show, "The Marilyn McCoo and Billy Davis, Jr. Show," premiering Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 10 and 44.

Based on some real life experiences, Marilyn and Billy will take the audience behind the scenes of rehearsals and into their home, revealing comical situations they have encountered while preparing nightclub acts and their own show.

Musically the team will be shown singing on remote locations around the Los Angeles area in addition to numbers before a studio audience.

After 10 years of singing with the highly successful group, the 5th Dimension, the couple broke away and started their own nightclub act and recorded their first album "I Hope We Get to Love in Time."

In 1977 the couple won a Grammy Award for the smash single of the LP, "You Don't Have to Be a Star (to Be in My Show)."

Making appearances on different shows will be regular Jay Leno, playing the couple's road manager and a comedy team called the Rudeen Brothers, played by Lewis Arquette and Tim Reid.

No longer John Boy, but he can't shake the country image

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Thomas seems destined to play rural and small town youths in America's past, but he believes he has nearly completed the transition toward adult roles.

For the past five years he was John Boy on "The Waltons," but he is not returning to the CBS show in the fall.

A week ago he completed a run at the Ahmanson Theater in "Merton of the Movies," about a boy who leaves Illinois to go to Hollywood.

His latest film is "9-30-55," in which he plays a small town boy in Arkansas who is so affected by the death of teen-age screen idol James Dean that he, too, sets out for Hollywood.

It will open on Sept. 30 — 22 years after the death of Dean.

Thomas, who turns 26 on June 13, said he is not desperate to break away from the image of John Boy. "To be too desperate would indicate an insecurity on my part," he said. "It would be an overreaction. The reason I'm leaving the series is not to stop playing roles like John Boy, but to stop playing John Boy."

"It's served a wonderful purpose for me in many ways. It's created a financial independence and a leverage for artistic independence. It's given me an opportunity to be in front of a camera every day to practice my craft."

"And it's a rewarding experience to create a beloved character that the public identifies you with. But it's only a role and it has to come to an end. If another similar role comes along and it's a wonderful property I'd be crazy not to take it."

Thomas said, "Perhaps one of the most important things the series has helped me do was bridge the gap between adolescent roles and leading man roles. That's very difficult to do. The greater part of that gap is now behind me."

"I'm talking about image and age. I've already carried pictures. I'm looking for more mature roles now. I've played so many young roles — and I can still pass for 18."

Told that CBS announced recently to its affiliates that he would return to "The Waltons" for periodic visits, Thomas broke into laughter.

"Seriously, they've spoken to me and sent me a few story episodes," he said. "But there is nothing yet to merit my return. John Boy has left the family home and there has to be a good reason for him to return. My going back for a certain percentage of roles is out of the question."

"Of course, the older son returning is valid, but it has to be plausible."

Thomas said the decision to leave "The Waltons" was not difficult because he had made it five years earlier, when he signed the contract. He said he determined at that time to remain no longer than five years, although he had his doubts that the show would run that long.

A couple of sunshine boys will make film for TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Burns and Jack Albertson, award winners for the same role in "The Sunshine Boys," will be appearing together in a CBS movie special, "The Comedy Shop."

Burns will make a guest appearance in the 2½-hour film to be produced by MGM Television. Albertson stars as the owner of a comedy night club that is saved from bankruptcy by a show starring Burns.

Albertson created the role of the aging comedian in "The Sunshine Boys" on Broadway, winning a Tony for his performance. Burns assumed the same role in the movie version and was awarded an Oscar as best supporting actor.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rising young comic Franklyn Ajaye has been hired as a recurring guest on NBC's "Chico and the Man" series.

Ajaye has been cast as the son of Della Reese on the comedy show, which starred Jack Albertson and the late Freddie Prinze. The Prinze role has not been re-cast.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paramount Pictures has sent "Citizens Band" back to the drawing boards for a new approach to the movie's release.

The new film opened in 200 theaters throughout the country last month and drew an apathetic response, despite generally good reviews. It ran into competition from two other movies about CB radio, "Breaker Breaker" and "Smoky and the Bandit."

Producer Freddie Fields said "Citizens Band" was withdrawn from release to provide a fresh look at how to sell it. The aim is to build

Shifts in minority enrollment

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The percentage of minorities at the University of California and the two-year community colleges dwindled between 1973 and 1975, a new state report shows.

Minority enrollment increased at state colleges over the same period.

The report by the California Postsecondary Education Commission staff Monday said UC minority enrollment declined from 20.3 per cent in 1973 to 19.9 per cent in 1975, while community college minority enrollment was falling from 24.5 to 20.8 per cent.

At the California State University and Colleges, minority enrollment increased from 19.6 per cent to 21.7 per cent.

The report by the California Postsecondary Education Commission staff Monday said UC minority enrollment declined from 20.3 per cent in 1973 to 19.9 per cent in 1975, while community college minority enrollment was falling from 24.5 to 20.8 per cent.

The report said barriers to enrollment include a shortage of bilingual teachers in public schools and UC's shortage of programs for part-time students.

Commission member Geraldine Woods said another problem was high school counselors who discourage minorities from going to college.

a following, along the lines of "American Graffiti."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Jaws 2" will have a special still photographer — Susan Ford.

The daughter of former President Gerald R. Ford will start her assignment at the Martha's Vineyard location of the sequel on June 19.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Universal Studios has acquired film rights to Loretta Lynn's best-selling autobiography.

Bernard Schwartz will produce the movie, which Tom Richman is writing. "Loretta Lynn, Coal Miner's Daughter," written with George Vecsey, has a million copies in print for the paperback edition.

Reports on military

SAN RAMON — Thomas E. Lindner, son of Mr. Thomas W. Lindner of Medinah Place, has been commissioned a Navy Ensign and received a bachelor of science degree upon graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

As a midshipman at the academy, he underwent four years of extensive study of engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government. In addition to an active physical fitness curriculum, he studied military justice, leadership and naval history and completed a variety of elective courses leading to his baccalaureate.

Summer programs provided him with an opportunity to gain professional experience aboard Navy vessels and at Navy and Marine Corps shore installations. During training cruises, he received practical instruction in basic seamanship, navigation, ordnance, gunnery and communications. He participated in battle drills and learned to control and fire shipboard weapons.

PLEASANTON — Marine Lance Corporal Robert G. Hickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hickey of Bonita Avenue, recently participated in the allied exercise "Team Spirit" in the western Pacific.

He is serving as a member of Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 462, homebased at the Marine Corps' Futenma Air Station on Okinawa.

The combined U.S. and Republic of Korea (ROK) exercise was held during March and April. United States forces, consisting of Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps units, joined with their ROK counterparts for the maneuvers. The exercise was designed to train commanders, their staffs and forces in the execution of joint and combined sea, air and ground operations.

He joined the Marine Corps in September, 1974.

LIVERMORE — Second Lieutenant Dean H. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Miller of DeLeon Way, has been awarded silver wings upon graduation from U.S. Air Force navigator training at Mather AFB.

Lieutenant Miller is remaining at Mather for advanced training.

The lieutenant, a 1972 graduate of Granada High School, received a bachelor's degree in biology in 1976 from the University of California at Los Angeles where he was commissioned through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Program.

PLEASANTON — Marine Private Steven G. Romero, son of Carol Meek of Comanche Way, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

He joined the Marine Corps in February.

LIVERMORE — Selected for instruction in the missile electronics field at Chanute AFB, Ill., after completing basic training at Lackland AFB, Texas, is Airman David G. Dyer, son of Gilbert C. Dyer of California Way.

Completion of his training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

PLEASANTON — Marine Corporal Brett H. Beadleson, son of Howard J. Beadleson and Wilda M. Holley, both of Merganser Court, has been promoted to his present rank while serving with the First Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton.

A 1975 graduate of Amador Valley High School, he joined the Marine Corps in September, 1975.

LIVERMORE — Navy Aviation Antisubmarine Warfare Technician Second Class Harold J. Kover II, son of Harold J. Kover of Scenic Avenue, has reported for duty with Helicopter Antisubmarine Squadron Four, Naval Air Station, North Island, San Diego.

A 1970 graduate of Livermore High School, he joined the Navy in April, 1971.

LIVERMORE — Airman Brian J. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. King of Sandra Way, has been selected for technical training at Sheppard AFB, Texas, in the Air Force aircraft maintenance field.

Airman King attended Livermore High School.

List of college graduates

'Tis the season for graduations, and many former Valley residents have completed their hard drive towards awardation of the sheepskin. A partial list of those graduates is presented below.

California Polytechnic State University at San Luis Obispo held commencement exercises June 11, with more than 3,100 persons receiving their degrees.

LIVERMORE — Lesli Mari Andrade, physical science; Matthew Wade Beyer, agricultural business management; Howard Christian Lane, metallurgical engineering; Robert Thomas Lyons, industrial arts; Mark Irwin Morgan, engineering technology.

Also Mark James Sipes, industrial technology; Randolph James Taylor, a master's in mathematics and a master's in computer science; and David Robinson Willis, natural resources management.

PLEASANTON — Patricia Lynne Baratta, dietetics and food administration; Kermit Eric Bengtson, mechanical engineering; Frederick Anders Hall, animal science; Steven Andrew Salem, business administration; and Debra Lea Wasser, home economics.

Two Modesto Junior College students from Pleasanton will receive associate degrees in ceremonies this month.

George E. Campiotti Jr., a general major, and Joseph J. Martin, an agribusiness major, will get their degrees in the college's 55th annual commencement.

At Rice University in Houston, Texas, Thomas Bratton Cook III, son of Mr. and Mrs. T.B. Cook Jr. of Castletown Drive in Pleasanton, will receive his PhD in physics.

Three Valley students got their degrees from University of the Pacific in Stockton last month.

Alyce M. (Crohare) Englehardt of Livermore earned a master of arts degree, while Suzanne Eggers of Pleasanton got her master of science degree and Sharon K. Mullins Smith of Pleasanton won her bachelor of music degree.

Duane Colin Werth of Pleasanton received his bachelor's in business administration from Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash. last month. He was one of 688 degree candidates.

Michael G. Forrester of Pleasanton, a graduate student in medicine, was one of 21 students at the University of California at Irvine who received special recognition for outstanding research and creative achievement.

Forrester was awarded the J. Gordon Hatfield Award for overall excellence, particularly in surgery, and the UCI Alumni Research Award. He was also the recipient of a Lange Book Award for clinical excellence.

Cookie-eater pleaser and manager of the Cookie Factory at San Ramon Valley Unified School District, Doris Anderson among her many tasty creations

Cookie factory turns in spatula for summer

By GAY LEE EDGAR
Times Staff Writer

SAN RAMON — Students hooked on the special taste of peanut butter, oatmeal or ginger crisp cookies are going to have to find a new supply now that summer and the last day of school have finally arrived.

The Cookie Factory at San Ramon Valley Unified School District — which makes about 15,000 big brunch cookies each week — is closed for the summer.

No longer will the warm, savory smell of cookies baking waft down the hall of the instructional materials center where the cookie factory is located.

Manager is Doris Anderson who orders about 1,200 pounds of flour each week to bake the favorite snack of all ages, plus dinner rolls, French bread and pizza shells for school lunches.

Anderson says there is no difference in the demand for the cookies — the high school students eat as many as the elementary school students.

Each holiday the four-member cookie staff bakes a special cookie. There are bells and gingerbread men at Christmas time, and there are hearts for Valentine's Day, and there are special Halloween shaped cookies, too.

During the year, classes have field trips through the cookie factory, and often moms and dads as well as teachers follow their noses down the hall to the kitchen.

And they all want at least one, for the price of 10 cents each, Anderson says.

Cookie lovers throughout the school district will have to wait — with dreams of cookies tiding them over the summer — until the cookie factory is back in operation in September.
